and Karen Gerker, won the South Central Ohio League band contest which was held in conjunction with the Offsides football game.

In third annual Offsides event

Community Education real winner

By PHIL LEWIS

Record-Herald Staff Writer

With approximately $3,500 raised and 3,000 people in attendance at Gardner Park Stadium, Community Education program director Hank Shaffer termed the third annual Offsides Day activities as the most successful yet.

The day-long activities were topped off by the popular football game, which raises funds for the operation of the Washington C.H. Area Community Education program. The benefit game became a reality two years ago after daily barbs and amusing stories about a mythical Washington C.H. professional football team by Cincinnati radio announcer James Francis Patrick O'Neill.

Activities began Saturday at 9 a.m. with the annual leukemia carnival at Eymann Park. The carnival was held through 5 p.m. with all proceeds going for leukemia research.

Thirty minutes after the carnival closed, the Offsides parade began its

AN UNSIGNED letter accompanied three bags of peanuts found Monday morning on the desks of the Fayette County commissioners.

It stated that the peanuts were purchased in Georgia, but were not guaranteed to be authentic Jimmy Carter goobers.

A thorough investigation disclosed that Ralston Smith, who recently returned from his vacation, was spreading the Democratic candidate's trademark.

THE U.S. ARMY Corps of Engineers is now in the process of lowering the water level of Deer Creek Lake Reservoir, near Mount Sterling.

Persons who have boats moored on the lake are asked to remove their craft, and those who will be boating during the fall months should be very cautious of shallow areas in the lake.

The water level is reduced during the fall and winter months each year.

HIGH SCHOOL juniors and seniors can learn about study programs and opportunities in the fields of agriculture and natural resources during a careers conference to be held at Ohio State University later this month.

The conference, sponsored by the Ohio State University college of agriculture and home economics, will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. Thursday, September 30 in the Agricultural Administration Auditorium, 2120 Fyffe Road, on the Ohio State campus.

Students, parents, counselors and other interested persons are invited to attend the conference which will be highlighted by programs on career opportunities, getting started at Ohio State, small group discussions with faculty members and students and departmental visits to student interest areas.

More information on the agriculture and natural resources career conference can be obtained by contacting Jack Sommers, Fayette County 4-H extension agent, at 335-1150.

trek from the Washington Middle School through the downtown business district and to Gardner Park.

Six high school bands were in the procession which included the contestants for the "Queen of Queens" contest, Offsider players and their competition the Paint Creek No-Stars team, and parade grand marshal Chuck Dougherty, a WLW-Radio announcer.

The football game began at 6:30 p.m. with the women's Offsiders playing their counterparts on the No-Stars team. The two squads fought to an 8-8 halftime score.

A band contest featuring the majority of the marching bands from the South Central Ohio League high schools was held at halftime.

The Washington C.H. Blue Lion marching band won the competition and received a superior rating for its performance on the football field. Wilmington High School was second and Circleville finished third in the judging by high school and college band directors who were in attendance at the Saturday night festivities.

Awards were also given for the best performances by a majorette corps, a drill squad and a field commander. Washington C.H.'s majorette corps received a best-performance award while Circleville's field commander and drill squad took top honors.

Tax reform major item for debates?

By JAMES H. RUBIN

Associated Press Writer

President Ford is polishing his prose for the upcoming debate, while his Democratic rival, Jimmy Carter, is reviving whistle-stop campaigning in a barnstorming tour of key Eastern states.

Recalling memories of the late President Harry Truman, Carter boards a train in New York City today to whistle stop through New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Ford had a light schedule, leaving plenty of time to rehearse for Thursday night's nationally televised debate with Carter in Philadelphia on domestic issues.

Aides said the President had the substance of what he wants to say "down pretty cold" and was concentrating on how to get his points across without wasting words.

The League of Women Voters said it will stick to its ground rules for the debates, prohibiting television cameras from focusing on the audience, unless both Ford and Carter agreed to a change.

The television networks have protested the restrictions, particularly Richard Salant, the president of CBS News, who said in telegrams to Ford and Carter that barring TV from showing audience reaction would "create the most dangerous precedent" for news coverage.

Tax reform shaped up as a leading subject for the first face-to-face confrontation between the candidates.

Carter traded charges and accusations with Republicans over the weekend, in a controversy that followed an Associated Press interview in which the former Georgia governor expounded on tax revision.

Carter said the purpose of reform should be to shift a substantial portion of the tax burden to persons with higher incomes.

With vice presidential candidate Bob Dole leading the way, GOP critics contended Carter would increase taxes

Gains made in African talks

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew to Zambia today, and his aides claimed he has advanced prospects of black rule for Rhodesia and South-West Africa.

Kissinger went to Lusaka to tell President Kenneth Kaunda about his weekend talks in Pretoria with Prime Ministers Ian D. Smith of Rhodesia and John Vorster of South Africa.

Smith and several of his cabinet ministers who accompanied him to the South African capital flew home to Salisbury on Sunday after two four-hour sessions with Kissinger. Smith was to present joint U.S.-British proposals for black rule to his cabinet and to the caucus of his ruling Rhodesian Front party.

"I'm satisfied that Mr. Smith and his very close collaborators will report favorably to their other colleagues," Kissinger said. Twice before, Smith's supporters have repudiated accords on Rhodesia's constitutional future that he initialed with the British government.

The U.S.-British plan calls for a commitment to black majority rule within two years, a constitutional conference in Geneva, broadening of the Rhodesian cabinet to include black nationalists and a $2-billion fund to compensate whites who leave Rhodesia and finance development of the nation under black rule. The United States, Britain, South Africa and other nations would supply the money.

Observers in Salisbury expressed belief that both Smith and Kissinger made major concessions. They believed that Smith for the first time accepted the principle of black majority rule. But they also believed that Kissinger had agreed to a transitional period of longer than two years.

A spokesman for Kissinger reported that he and Vorster made "considerable progress" in their discussions of the future of South-West Africa, or Namibia, as it is called by the United Nations.

South African sources said Vorster agreed in principle for the South-West Africa People's Organization, or SWAPO, to join negotiations to arrange independence and black rule for the territory which South Africa has controlled since World War I. SWAPO is recognized by the United Nations as the representative of the black majority in the territory, but South Africa refused to negotiate with it, and SWAPO has been fighting a guerrilla war for independence.

After meeting with Kaunda, Kissinger planned to fly on to Dar es Salaam to tell President Julius Nyerere about his talks in Pretoria. Kaunda and Nyerere are two of the five black African presidents in the forefront of the movement to end white rule in southern Africa, the others being Agostinho Neto of Angola, Samora Machel of Mozambique and Sir Seretse Khama of Botswana.

Kaunda and Nyerere have said they will not settle for less than black rule for Rhodesia by 1978 and for early Namibian statehood under the leadership of SWAPO.

GRID ACTION — An Offsiders runner looks for daylight during the first half of the annual football contest which benefits the Washington C.H. Area Community Education Program.

Deaths, Funerals

Pallbearers for the burial in Jackson Cemetery, Vinton County, were Randy and Allan Anschutz, Kaerry Iles, and Fred, John and Don Melvin.

Soybean prices to end limit talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department apparently is counting on rebounding prices for soybeans and soybean meal to dampen demand for those farm products enough so that whoever is president next spring won't even have to think about a possible export embargo.

Top officials, from USDA chief economist Don Paarlberg to President Ford himself, say the soybean supply, with a 16 per cent drop in the harvest this season, is tight but will be adequate.

Ford and Democrat Jimmy Carter both have pledged no more farm-export embargoes except in emergencies. A 1973 soybean embargo remains a politically touchy subject among farmers.

But an article in today's edition of Foreign Agriculture, an official USDA weekly magazine, repeatedly addresses the demand factor.

Worldwide use of soybean meal in 1976, after dropping last year for the first time in recent history, has been significantly stronger than the experts expected, according to the article written by Alan E. Holz, a Foreign Agricultural Service analyst of the world market for oilseeds and products.

"A further tightening of world supplies of high-protein meal appears imminent," Holz wrote. "In anticipation of this situation, prices have already rebounded sharply from those of a year ago, laying the basis for a braking of the current boom in soybean meal consumption."

The most direct problem this might reflect for American consumers would be the scaling down by livestock producers, particularly hog farmers, of part of their planned boosts this winter of pork production.

Larger supplies of pork would help curtail rises in beef prices when the expected drop in beef production comes in early 1977. Soybean meal is important as a feed supplement.

Holz continued that, while demand is expected to break, the momentum of this year still is great enough to produce predictions of no falling off in world soybean meal and oil trade during calendar 1977.

The shrinking U.S. quantity in and share of the market will be picked up by Brazil and by Malaysian palm-oil exporters.

Regardless of the source of the actual crop, however, the world trade situation is what ultimately determines price and demand, in the absence of controls, USDA maintains.

Holz writes that a major implication of the current trends is: "Supplies of meal and oil will be adequate to meet domestic and foreign ... requirements, but prices will remain relatively above those of the past season."

Those higher prices, he continued, should discourage any great expansion of demand long enough for producers to respond to them by boosting plantings, so that "the supply squeeze (can) be short-lived."

First indications should be clear late this year, he said, when Brazilian and Argentine farmers start planting for April-harvested crops.

Stocks show small gains

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead today, responding to signs that interest rates were heading lower.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed nearly 3 points in the early going, moving once again to the threshold of the 1,000 level.

Gainers took a 5-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading remained heavy, with the consolidated ticker tape reporting trades in NYSE issues running five minutes late. Friday's session was the busiest in nearly six months.

Brokers reported a widespread belief that the Federal Reserve might be moving to ease up a bit on credit, fostering lower interest rates.

That feeling got some support this morning when New York's Morgan Guaranty Trust and the First National Bank of Chicago reduced their prime lending rates from 7 to 6 3/4 per cent.

Today's early prices included Westinghouse, unchanged at 18 1/2; Philip Morris, up 1/4 at 61, and Atlantic Richfield, down 1/4 at 54 3/4.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 7.15 to 995.10 to extend its gain for the past three sessions to 16.46 points.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 2-1 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index added .48 to 56.69.

Big Board volume reached 28.27 million shares, the heaviest total since a 32.61 millionshare day on March 24.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .56 at 103.38.

Gold market ups, downs confusing

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The ups and downs of the gold market are sometimes reflected at the jewelry counter, but consumers are finding that Newton's law of gravity doesn't work so consistently in the marketplace as it does in nature.

What goes up does not ALWAYS have to come down.

Intangibles — design, labor and fashion trends, for example — can be more important than raw materials in determining prices.

At the end of 1974, an ounce of gold cost almost $200. There were predictions that the price would go still further with the end of a 40-year ban on Americans owning gold bullion.

The gold rush fizzled. Supply was stronger than demand. The price of gold started dropping and now is just more than $110 an ounce, although prices rose slightly late last week when bids at the International Monetary Fund's auction of 780,000 ounces of gold were higher than expected.

Shoppers are finding that the cost of some jewelry has declined, but the drops are limited to items which are simple in design and are all gold. The more elaborate pieces, with diamonds or other stones and complicated workmanship, have gone up rather than down in price.

"If it's all gold, then there has been a drop in prices," said Mort Weisenfeld of the National Wholesale Jewelers Association. "There's no question about it. But even there, labor and other costs have gone up."

"If you're talking about a solitaire ring with a diamond, the gold value is negligible ... and the drop in gold has been more than balanced by the increase in diamonds, which are up significantly."

A spokesman for Tiffany & Co., the Fifth Avenue-based jewelry store, said that a perfectly simple, 18-carat-gold wedding band cost $12 five years ago. By the early part of 1975, the same ring cost $35. Today, it's $26.50.

The price of the ring went up 121 per cent over five years; in the same period, the price of gold — which had been frozen at $35 an ounce until 1968 — increased about 175 per cent and the government's Consumer Price Index of all items rose 41 per cent.

Morton Sarett, president of the Jewelry Industry Council, said jewelry prices have stabilized in recent years. They haven't shown any sharp increases or decreases. And they're not likely to.

Sarett said that jewelry is sold on the basis of craftsmanship, design and labor. Gold jewelry "has to reflect the cost of the raw materials," Sarett said, but only to a small degree.

For more elaborate gold jewelry, Sarett said, the strength of the demand for the product is more important than the cost of the gold.

Publicity about high prices for gold actually helped boost demand, Sarett said, explaining that "consumers began to feel more comfortable about the investment value" of jewelry in a time of inflation.

Vaccine supply stymied

Once again, industry reluctance to proceed without guarantees against liability has delayed provision of vitally important vaccines. The nationwide swine flue inoculation program was stymied for two months in a wrangle over safeguards for manufacturers. Now polio vaccine supply is in short supply because a manufacturer won't accept a federal contract unless health departments require parents to sign risk statements.

The consequences are serious, and might well be tragic. Polio vaccine supplies are so low that they are being rationed in some states. At least one, South Carolina, has quit enforcing its legal requirement that no child may enter school without polio protection.

As for the possibly tragic consequences, consider this statement of Dr. Charles U. Lowe, special assistant for child health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare: "I am fearful that curtailment of childhood immunization activities in a number of states may result in outbreaks of disease." That puts the issue starkly in terms of what may happen if quick action is not taken.

The impasse may be resolved, as when a manufacturer of measles vaccines withdrew a demand for a requirement that parents sign consent statements. But if the balky polio vaccine manufacturer will not follow suit, the government should promptly agree to some parental consent requirement so that mass immunization can proceed. The stakes are too high to do otherwise.

Following that temporary measure, Congress ought to take up the broad question raised by situations of this kind. Manufacturers have had cause to be nervous since one firm was held liable when an immunized infant contracted polio. They feel, perhaps rightly, that they must have some sort of guarantee before supplying materials for government-sponsored immunization programs. The matter strikes us as one to be resolved by legislative action.

WASHINGTON CALLING .... By Marquis Childs

Freedom of press in danger

WASHINGTON — With every indication that newspapers and television face growing doubt about credibility, government agencies have chosen to move in various ways to put a free press in jeopardy.

It is hardly less than an assault on the First Amendment, showing little or no realization of how essential this freedom is to the other guarantees in the Constitution of which the structure of a free society rests.

The most highly publicized case is that of Daniel Schorr, challenged by the House ethics committee to reveal the source of the leak of the report of the House intelligence committee.

Refusal can mean a citation for contempt by the full House and a jail sentence for Schorr. This last is unlikely but it is within the power of the Congress.

If it were not for the seriousness of the consequences and the implied threat to free reporting, the whole thing would have a slightly farcical air.

The House intelligence committee, headed by Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., was in itself a farce. It was as full of leaks as a sieve. Those leaks were reportedly a source for Reporter Schorr on the CBS evening news. The Pike committee had a woefully inadequate staff and the atmosphere was of a fishing expedition for headlines.

One of the puzzles is the ambivalent attitude of CBS. Schorr says that when he obtained the report he first offered it to the network, his employer. Turned down there, he tried a half dozen paperback book houses.

In the end he made it available to the Village Voice on condition that they publish the text in full.

CBS suspended him with full pay and agreed at the same time to meet the fees of his lawyer, Joseph Califano, a former special assistant to Lyndon Johnson. But Schorr has not been seen on the tube for more than six months and that in itself is a severe punishment for a working reporter.

While the House dallies with the Schorr case as the session of Congress winds to a close and after the so-called ethics committee has already spent $150,000 trying to ferret out the secret of the leak, there is a far more serious case in Fresno, Calif. It is more serious because four newsmen are already in jail and likely to remain there for an indefinite time at the whim of a vengeful judge.

Fresno Bee Managing Editor George F. Gruner and reporters James Bort Jr., William K. Patterson and Joe Rosato faced the same challenge as Schorr. The Fresno Bee printed excerpts from a grand jury report that the reporters had obtained. They refused to tell Superior Court Judge Denver C. Peckinpah their sources.

Their reporting could not conceivably have influenced the outcome of a case that had been pending before Judge Peckinpah's court since the trial had been moved to a different location. Moreover, California has a recently strengthened "shield law" which supposedly was meant to protect reporters in cases precisely like that of Fresno.

Reporters and editors around the country have joined in supporting the appeals to higher courts. This is surely a First Amendment case that the Supreme Court of the United States should consider. It ranks with the Miami-Herald-Tornillo case, in which a unanimous court ruled against the constitutionality of a Florida law giving the right of reply with equal space and position to individuals attacked in the newspaper.

Adding up the instances of efforts to suppress freedom of the press during the past few years, no one can be optimistic about the eventual outcome. The Supreme Court in a unanimous decision ruled against the Nebraska gag order. But the opinion by Chief Justice Warren Burger noted that First Amendment rights did not prevail "under all circumstances."

The Fresno case came up while the Supreme Court was in recess with a request for a stay of sentence. It was turned down by Justice William H. Rehnquist who has jurisdiction in the Western area. Now the court, about to begin the fall term, has before it a petition for "certiorari," which is an opportunity for a full hearing of the case.

The Bee papers, in Sacramento, Fresno and Modesto, are liberal in their outlook and powerful in their influence in Northern California.

Evidence of their fair-mindedness was in publishing a letter from a reader referring to the reporters as "these wild, arrogant news media dingbats."

And that raises the question that while we in the business are deeply concerned with press freedom, does this extend to the larger public?

Ohio Perspective

Metric system set for liquor stores

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The metric system is about to invade state stores and the new sizes and varying prices could prove a sobering experience for some shoppers.

Beginning Nov. 1, Ohioans can expect to find liters of scotch, 750 milliliters of bourbon and 500 milliliters of gin in the state-operated liquor stores.

For a time, many stores will probably stock both the traditional U.S. sizes and metric bottles as inventories are switched over according to Clifford E. Reich, director of the Department of Liquor Control.

But there will be no turning back. The federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has ordered that all bottles must be of metric scale by Jan. 1, 1980.

Reich plans to post charts in stores, explaining the differences in sizes. Also, to ease confusion, he says U.S. sizes and comparable metric sizes will not be stocked side by side on shelves.

Comparatively, one-half gallon of liquor or 64 ounces, matches up with a 1.75 liter bottle, 59.2 ounces. A "Fifth," and a 750 milliliter bottle are almost identical, each about 25½ ounces. A pint, 16 ounces, compares to a 500 milliliter bottle, 16.9 ounces.

A new size will also be available, the 1 liter bottle, which compares to the U.S. quart size that is generally not offered in Ohio.

Something else is new in the state liquor monopoly — everything stores, carrying every brand in the department's inventory.

Five such "customer service outlets" are already in operation—three in Cleveland and two in Columbus.

While most stores offer only items that are in demand in particular neighborhoods, the service outlets provide all 640 brands, or a total of 998 items counting various bottle types and sizes.

The program, inaugurated in Columbus last May, is expected to be expanded in coming months.

"We'll be looking at the other metropolitan areas," a liquor department spokesman said. "We consider the stores successful and we're going to go on with it."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)
Strongly benefic Mars influences should help you put over worthwhile plans now. Some changes may have to be made, but they will prove profitable in the long run.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)
If you take minor annoyances in stride, as Taurans usually do, you should enjoy your day. Chosen goals are nearer. Increased favors indicated.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)
If not overanxious, you can make extraordinary gains now. Careful thought and consideration of past procedures will give you direction.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)
Where you can step up impetus and momentum of activity, don't hesitate: There's much to accomplish now. Just one admonition: Don't overlook details.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Old-fashioned common sense will be needed in making decisions. Self-reliance, plus a certain amount of flexibility, will also boost your stock.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Pep up the "difficult" areas; aim for surer efficiency; study others' methods to note where they could apply to your situation.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

You may face some complex situations now, some unexpected obstacles, so anticipate them — but with composure and preparedness, not anxiety. You CAN cope.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Differences of opinion need not result in rifts. Get together with those concerned and calmly iron things out.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Don't negate past fine efforts through carelessness. Attend to all affairs in a quiet, dispassionate manner. Personal relationships should prove rewarding.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Look to others for suggestions — help, too. Don't try too much by yourself or reject ideas summarily, for the sake of delight in your personal achievement.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

There's a tendency now to take off on tangents or useless ventures unless you keep your mind on immediate objectives. Press for efficiency.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Delay may seem the rule rather than the exception. Work to eliminate the causes of defeat and disappointment before the effects set in.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine mind, great imagination and the stamina and persistence that are invaluable to research and scientific investigation. You would make an excellent physician or educator, but may prefer one of the arts as a career. If so, you could succeed especially in the theater, as a writer or music composer. Your diplomacy is outstanding and you could also become a top-flight statesman.

High school reunion sparks old flame

DEAR ABBY: Last June, when my husband went back to his hometown for his 50th high school reunion, he started up with an old sweetheart he hadn't seen since graduation. Ernie is 68 and retired, and she's a 67-year-old widow with 11 grandchildren!

Ernie took 60 Polaroid pictures at the reunion, and this woman is in 50 of them. She's skinny, has orange hair and wore a tight knit dress with a plunging neckline.

He's called her long distance several times (she lives in San Diego), and I'm sure they're corresponding the way he breaks his neck to get the mail first.

Ernie's told our children all about her, and they've been teasing me. He says it's all in fun, but I'm not sure.

Maybe I'm handling it all wrong, but I told Ernie he could have his freedom if he'll give me 50 per cent of everything he has.

I need some expert advice, Abby. What should I do?

JEALOUS AT 65
DEAR JEALOUS: Don't make Ernie any offers you don't intend to honor. He just may call your bluff.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to pose an ethical problem faced by many doctors. Here's the scenario:

A husband phones to say that he has picked up a case of gonorrhea and fears he has infected his wife. Since the wife is coming in for a routine checkup he wants you to diagnose and treat her without telling her what she has.

Should the doctor:

A. Refuse subterfuge and insist that the guy level with his wife?

B. Agree to test for gonorrhea, and if the test is positive, tell the wife the whole story?

C. Go all out and even lie a little to keep the philandering husband out of trouble?

ALABAMA M.D.
DEAR M.D.: Under no circumstances would an ethical doctor treat a patient for a venereal disease without telling her what she has. (She could conceivably infect others.) And in the interest of public health, instruct the V.D. source to tell his wife-or you will.

DEAR ABBY: The letter in your column signed J.M. just floored me! It was from a woman who had given birth to twins 34 years ago, and was told by her doctor that one twin had died, but never saw a birth certificate or a death certificate for the "dead" baby.

Abby, I had a similar experience. My doctor told me I was carrying twins, and I was thrilled.

I entered the hospital on June 19, 1941, and was examined by several interns and nurses, who told me that I would deliver twins. I had a long difficult labor, so when only one baby girl was presented to me, I was so relieved to have it over with I didn't fuss because I didn't get the twins I had expected.

Well, 34 years later while standing in the checkout line in the supermarket, I nearly fainted when I noticed that the woman ahead of me was the image of my daughter who lives in California! She could have been her identical twin sister. A sick feeling came over me, but I was so numb and speechless, I couldn't bring myself to speak to her.

That incident has haunted me for several months. I have no idea how to start searching for this woman, but if I ever see her again, you can bet I will think of something to say to her.

Cadet's cheating brings family nightmare

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer
WEST ISLIP, N.Y. (AP) — From the time their only son was born, Kenneth and Ann Curley wanted him to be a West Pointer. They were not disappointed.

They wanted to savor his successes — the medals, the awards and the trophies. Again they were not disappointed. They wanted him to be a leader, at the top of his class. He was. Now he is a convicted West Point cheater, and Ken and Ann Curley say it is the worst thing that's happened since they lost one of their five children to crib death syndrome. The cheating charge has created what Mrs. Curley calls a "living nightmare" of recriminations from their family, pointed comments from friends and telephone calls from cranks. The plaques on the walls of their modest Long Island home are a testament to the hopes they had — still have — for Kenneth Jr., a strapping lacrosse and football player whom all four service academies courted. He was once among the most promising leaders at West Point and in line to become fourth-ranking cadet in the entire corps. Now he has a clouded future. His stripes are gone and his pride bruised. He was convicted in August by an officer board in West Point's cheating scandal. He stood tearfully back among the plebes in the year's first parade, filled with the indignity of carrying a rifle. He said he should have been out front carrying the command, for unstinting praise and the top positions of responsibility had been his. "It really hurts," Cadet Curley, 20, says. "It really destroyed me — all this for one damn writ."

The "writ," cadet slang for a test, was the homework assignment administered early last March to 823 members of the Class of 1977. Roughly a quarter of the class was accused of collaborating on it, and those accused say the number is but a tip of the iceberg.

They are scapegoats and should be punished less lightly than what amounts to a year's suspension, they say. The honor system, they contend, isn't working.

"I love the place, but you look at it now, there are so many problems up there and the institution won't face it," young Curley said, expressing his determination to graduate nonetheless. He is destined to do so, his family says.

While still hospitalized after her son's premature birth — he weighed three pounds then, compared with 156 now — Mrs. Curley happened to watch "The Long Gray Line" on television. Then and there, she said, she decided: "This is where he was going to go."

The film was on several nights, and mother and father watched it at home. So it seemed natural enough that toy soldiers and tanks would grace his first Christmas. When the boy turned nine, the movie came on again. And his father let him stay up for it.

"As long as I can remember from that time on, that's where I wanted to go," the cadet recalled, idly thumbing the 760-page transcript of his hearing by the board of officers that convicted him.

He was always a leader, his parents said. When the Curleys moved to this pleasant community on the south shore, neighboring children mostly fished for play. But soon they played baseball and war.

"He organized this block," beamed the trim mother of three other children. "They were his army."

At high school, where he graduated 161st out of 800, Curley was captain of his football and lacrosse teams. By the time he was in the 9th grade, his mother said, he was already getting calls from West Point.

Young Curley wanted to go there so much that he didn't even answer the letter when the Navy invited him on a recruitment trip to Annapolis.

He has excelled at West Point. Seventh in his class of more than 800 in leadership. Ninth in physical education. Picked to be executive officer in charge of summer training at the academy's Camp Buckner.

"I think, based on Kenneth's ability to get along with people and his dedication toward his profession and doing a good job, he could be commissioned right now as an outstanding officer," his tactical officer testified at Curley's hearing.

Added a history professor: "I think Mr. Curley has more natural leadership ability than any cadet that I know ... There is no doubt in my mind that I would want that young man as a lieutenant in my company."

Even Col. Jack M. Pollin, the president of the officer board that convicted Curley, asked West Point's superintendent to allow him to remain at the academy, despite the mandatory penalty of expulsion.

Curley subsequently testified at a congressional hearing on the cheating scandal. Then the scandal came home.

Before she hung up, abruptly, Curley's grandmother had cried into the phone about the family's "disgrace," saying, Mrs. Curley said, "What about my senior citizens club? What am I going to tell them?"

Ann Curley said she even asked her employer whether she should quit because of the notoriety. The offer was rejected. An out-of-work electronics buyer, she now works as a waitress to pay $300-a-month telephone bills she says accumulated in the cadets' defense.

"Everybody's turning their back on these cadets," said Mrs. Curley, who has stopped wearing her West Point necklace. "I don't think it's fair. What I'm angered at, if something doesn't work, you ought to change it."

Said Mr. Curley, a 46-year-old industrial artist: "I think he's going to be a better officer because he went through this." And his son agreed: "There's not a guy involved who hasn't done a lot of growing up."

Not everyone stands behind their sons like the Curleys, the cadet said. He said one Long Island cadet was disowned by his Army captain brother.

"A lot of guys are afraid to go home," he said.

Peoria unusual sci-fi writer site

By WILLIAM PRATER
Associated Press Writer
PEORIA, Ill. AP — Thousands of miles from the aerospace industry of Southern California where he used to work and light years distant from his neighbors in Peoria, Philip Jose Farmer wanders in and out of the distant future and vanished past.

Farmer, who writes science fiction, moved to Peoria six years ago because Los Angeles, he said, was overcrowded and too polluted. His new neighbors, he said in an interview, "know what I do for a living, but they don't read science fiction."

So Farmer, an innovative writer in an innovative field, retreats into worlds of his own making, like Riverworld. The first in the Riverworld series, "To Your Scattered Bodies Go," earned Farmer the Hugo award for best science fiction novel of 1971. He also has Hugos for the best novella of 1969, "Riders of the Purple Wage," and for being the most promising author with his 1952 novel, "The Lovers," which ignored all of science fiction's traditional taboos against sex.

Farmer's books show man the exploiter. "When I was a young writer, I believed in rationality," the author said in an interview. "Not any more. Man is basically irrational. He just justifies his actions with logic. ... But I try to show that no matter how bad you are, you're capable of being better — of doing good."

Many of Farmer's stories involve the "middle-size mid-illinois city of Busiris," a thinly disguised Peoria. In "Stations of the Nightmare," Paul Eyre of Busiris asks Leo Tincrowdor, a neighbor who writes science fiction, "Why don't you ever write anything good about anybody?"

Tincrowdor replies: "The people get the kind of science fiction writer they deserve."

Peoria is Farmer's home town, but he says he has few friends and lives a quiet life.

He is working on three novels at the same time. "You just have to wall yourself off from one world and step into another," he said.

One of the books Farmer is working on is the long-awaited conclusion to the Riverworld series, which takes place in an alien world of the future. Another, in his Hadon of Opar series, is based on the civilizations of ancient Crete and Babylon.

To many people, Farmer is most famous as the Tarzan Hunter — he created a meticulous genealogy of the jungle warrior. Farmer said he got more than 50 letters, some for forwarding to Tarzan and others wondering if Farmer had indeed seen the Ape Man in a Chicago motel — as he claimed.

Farmer was a technical writer for an aerospace firm in California until 1969, when he lost his job in a big industry layoff.

He said he believes the world is headed for a tragic end and Peoria is as good a vantage point as any. Unless something drastic is done about pollution of the oceans and the energy crisis, "civilization is going to crumble," Farmer said.

Early river patrols helped curb Indians

By The Associated Press
The mouth of the Scioto River at Portsmouth was a favorite point for Indians from which to attack boats ascending or descending the Ohio River. It became a tragic spot for many families lost to the tomahawks of the Shawnee during Ohio's frontier days.

Sometimes the Indians, threatening torture, forced white men and women, and children, to decoy other whites ashore by feigning distress, whereupon the Indians came from concealment.

One of the victims was John May, slain in 1790. May, for whom Maysville, Ky., is named, had been an early adventurer and constant visitor to Kentucky. He was no Indian fighter, but his main effort was acquisition of land. One historian said that had it not been for his death he would probably have been the greatest landholder in the country.

At length, the Indian river raids became frequent, people in the interior of Kentucky became aroused and began to take steps to curb the killings. In the spring of 1792, four spies were employed to range from Limestone, now Maysville, to the mouth of Big Sandy River. The four were Duncan McArthur, who later became governor of Ohio; Samuel Davis, Nathaniel Beasley and Samuel McDowell.

With courage and skill they began their tours two by two once each week to the mouth of the Big Sandy, having frequent brushes with Indian scouts. On Monday morning two would leave Limestone and reach Sandy by Wednesday evening; on Thursday morning the other two would leave Limestone for the mouth of the Sandy.

Thus they would meet or pass each other about opposite the mouth of the Scioto, in going and returning, four times in each week. This incessant vigilance would be continued until late in November, or the first of December, when hostilities generally ceased in the later years of the Indian Wars.

Rain brings flood threat

By The Associated Press
Thunderstorms continued into this morning over much of the southern plains and spread to Arkansas and Louisiana. A flash flood watch was posted through the night for much of north-central Texas.

Late night showers and a few thunderstorms were scattered from southern Illinois and southwest Indiana into eastern lower Michigan. There were some thundershowers in Oregon, northeast Utah and southwest Wyoming. Showers diminished in central Colorado.

In the southeast, thundershowers ended in central Georgia, but continued off the central and southern Florida Gulf coast.

Clear and cool conditions settled over the northern half of the great plains and from the northern Rockies to the northern and central intermountain regions. Except for clear skies over most of the north Atlantic coast states, haze and fog was widespread east of the Mississippi River and westward into the eastern portions of the southern plains. The southern plateau was fair.

Overnight temperatures were in the 70s along the Gulf coast and in the 60s along the Atlantic coast. Inland, temperatures dipped into the 30s in parts of Minnesota and the northern Rockies.

Temperatures around the nation ranged from 33 at Gillette, Wyo., to 83 at Needles, Calif., Phoenix, Ariz. and the Corpus Christi, Tex., naval air station.

One of the best known monuments in Ohio is the "My Jewels" monument on the capitol grounds in Columbus, a bronze statue on a granite pedestal. Figures of Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Stanton, Garfield, Chase and Hayes, Ohio soldiers and statesmen, surround the shaft topped by a statue of the Roman mother, Cornelia whose words, "These are my jewels" stand out in relief at the top of the shaft.

MRS. CHARLES E. JORDAN

Wedding in Springfield church announced to friends here

The High Street Church of the Nazarene in Springfield was the scene of the marriage of Mary Ann Piper to Charles Edward Jordan on September 11 at 2:30 p.m. The double-ring rites were performed by the Rev. Ronald E. Justice.

A program of organ music was presented by Mr. Clyde McDaniels and love songs presented by soloist, Robin Speelman. Mary Lee Simpson, soloist, presented the prayer song.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ora R. Piper Jr. of South Vienna. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Jordan of Jeffersonville.

Attending her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Robert L. Speelman. Junior bridesmaid was Robin Speelman, niece of the bride.

Mrs. Carl Jordan of Lawrenceburg, Indiana, brother of the groom, performed the duties of best man and groomsman was Jeffrey Speelman, nephew of the bride.

Guests were seated by ushers Dr. Robert L. Speelman and Jeffrey Speelman. Mrs. Geraldine Jordan was in charge of the guest book and Debbie Lovett of Milledgeville, niece of the groom, was in charge of the gifts.

Debbie Snyder, Connie Adkins, Florence Spangler and Mary Lee Simpson were hostesses for the catered reception held in the fellowship hall of the church.

A musical program was presented during the reception by pianist Alwilda Lechner. A rehearsal buffet was co-hosted by the parents of the bride and groom on September 10 at the home of the bride's parents. A pre-nuptial luncheon was held on September 3 in the Beeffeder Restaurant of the Holiday Inn, South by employees of the Koehring Company and hosted by Debbie Snyder.

The bride, a graduate of Miami Trace High School, is employed by the Koehring Company. Her husband, a graduate of Jeffersonville High School, is employed by the Joseph E. Seagram Company and is a member of the Masonic Lodge of Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

Following a month-long wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside at 535 Tanner Avenue, Lawrenceburg, Ind.

DAR plans 'Guest Day'

The Washington C.H. Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will open its 1976-77 year with a "Guest Day" luncheon at Wardell's Party Home on Monday, Oct. 4. This year marks the 78th anniversary of the organization of the local chapter. The National DAR was founded in 1890, incorporated June 4, 1891, and granted a charter by U.S. Congress in 1896, signed by President Grover Cleveland. Their first Regent was Anna Tuthill Symmes, wife of President William Henry Harrison, the First Lady, who never occupied the White House, but who stayed at their home at North Bend, Ohio.

This is a Society whose membership is composed by direct descendants of those patriots who gave valuable assistance to the Revolutionary War effort from 1775-1783. The task of locating the graves of Revolutionary War soldiers and their wives was entrusted to the DAR by the U.S. government in 1897. Proof of lineage is documented in Washington D.C.

For their opening meeting the local chapter has been fortunate in securing Mrs. Merritt Huber, State Regent of Ohio as their speaker. She will speak about the "DAR-Past, Present and Future—a Landmark on Which to Build." Her talk will be most interesting for those newer members of the organization who have little opportunity to discover what has gone on before. She will also refresh the memories of those who are longtime members. Those who challenge the group with new ideas as one builds toward the

Mrs. Johnson hostess

The Sunnyside Willing Workers met in the home of Mrs. Fred Johnson for the September meeting. Two former members were welcomed back as guests for the evening, Mrs. Dallas Hess of Washington C.H. and Mrs. Helen Yates of Damascus.

Mrs. Gladys Ramey conducted the business meeting, and Mrs. Johnson gave the devotion. She read "The Golden Windows" and a prayer. Mrs. Edith Scott read two poems.

Reports were presented and cards signed for Verna Osborn and Gladys Hayes. A thank you note was also acknowledged.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Ramey, Mrs. Dorothy Moore, Mrs. Clara Carr, Mrs. Olive Brookover, Mrs. Anna Howard, Mrs. Pauline Richardson, Miss Faye Montavon, Mrs. Edith Scott, Mrs. Genevieve Whitmer, Mrs. Jane Wieland, and the two guests. The remainder of the evening was spent visiting.

SCOPS meet scheduled in Portsmouth

The next meeting of the South Central Ohio Preservation Society, Inc., will be held on Sunday, September 26th, at 2:00 p.m. in the handsome "1810 House" in Portsmouth, Ohio. The "1810 House" is located at 1926 Waller Street, across from the Lincoln School in north-east Portsmouth.

The house was built in 1810 by Aaron Kinney, and is believed to be the oldest house in Portsmouth. Kinney was a bank director, as well as one of the largest land owners in the area. He lived from 1773 to 1857 and built his greek revival house of red brick, adding a fine portico with four white columns, all in the process of restoration and preservation today.

After a short business meeting there will be a seminar on "Human Values of Architecture" with special emphasis on southern Ohio. The seminar will be conducted by Laszlo Koe-Krompecher, a leading architect and past president of "SCOPS".

During this past summer, through the efforts of the preservation director, David L. Brook, the society added new members. They came into the organization through the task force work in the Ohio Inventory and National Register Nominations.

"SCOPS" has never had a membership drive, but for anyone wishing to join the society, and who feels that the work of preservation is worth while and important, the address is "SCOPS" — Box 6 — Piketon, Ohio 45661.

Conner Farm Woman's Club

Mrs. Kenneth A. Bush was hostess to members and guests of the Conner Farm Woman's Club at the new Staunton United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall, Thursday. Mrs. W. Barton Montgomery, president, was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. R. Carleton Belt, chaplain, gave the devotion by reading the "The Change of Seasons", "A Woman and Her Home", "Her Ark and Covenant", and "I Have Found Such Job." The Club creed was read in unison. The roll call was answered by each member telling a "Laugh Line". Mrs. Lorain Morter resigned as secretary, and Mrs. Maryon Mark, was appointed to fill Mrs. Morter's unexpired term.

Mrs. Mark read the minutes and gave the treasurer's report. The program was in charge of Mrs. Otties Smith and brought forth much merriment. Mrs. Smith read "Grandma's Apron", "Little Things Bother You", "And Now a Few Words From Our Sponsor". She had a scrambled words contest of famous names, and Mrs. Belt was awarded the prize.

Mrs. Bush seated her guests at one long table centered with fall floral arrangements for the serving of an elaborate dessert course.

Guests with the members were Mrs. William E. Still, Mrs. A.L. Fishback, and Mrs. Orville C. Jenkins. Members present were Mrs. R. Carleton Belt, Mrs. Orville Bush, Mrs. Kenneth A. Bush, Mrs. Robert I. Case, Mrs. Robert D. Coffman, Mrs. Heber Deer, Mrs. Maryon Mark, Mrs. W. Barton Montgomery.

Also Mrs. Otties Smith, Mrs. Maurice L. Sollars, Mrs. Walter E. Sollars, Mrs. Millard M. Weidinger, Mrs. Edgar Wilson, Mrs. Job Burris, Sabina, and Mrs. Lorain Morter, Greenfield.

The October meeting will be held at the Marting Lodge with Mrs. Sam B. Marting, hostess. It will be a carry-in luncheon. Mrs. Marting will be in charge of the program. The roll call will be "Famous Sayings of Famous Men."

MRS. BILL ANDERSON

Miss Ralph, Mr. Anderson wed in First Baptist Church

Miss Karen S. Ralph became the bride of Bill L. Anderson in First Baptist Church in Greenfield Aug. 21. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Ralph of Greenfield, and Mrs. Betty Anderson of Greenfield and Marlyn Anderson of Washington C.H. are parents of the groom.

The Rev. Joseph Current officiated for the double-ring ceremony at 2:30 p.m. A prelude of contemporary and traditional wedding selections was presented by James Chamblin, vocalist, with Miss Krista Lucas at the piano. Miss Lucas presided at the organ for nuptial selections and the professional and recessional.

Fall tones of rust, gold, melon and orange was the color scheme for the wedding.

Two standing baskets of gladioli and mums in autumn colors accented with matching ribbon, with wedding candles in seven branch candelabra, and single candles and greenery in each of the sanctuary windows made the wedding setting. Leatherleaf foliage and white satin bows marked the family pews.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of white Maracaine knit with short bell sleeves, sheer yoke and high neckline detailed with Cluny lace. The same lace fell from the shoulders crisscrossing at the front of the empire waistline. The princess line floor length skirt was complemented at the hemline with lace.

Her mantilla of silk illusion, encircled with ruffled Cluny lace, draped softly over an illusion wedding ring headpiece and terminated in a wide chapel length train. Her only jewelry was a treasured cameo brooch that belonged to her great grandmother Cameron. She carried a colonial bouquet of orange CanCan roses, white, yellow and orange Snow Crystal poms and baby's breath with lace streamers.

Mrs. Kathy Hulland, Mrs. Kay McBee, sisters of the bride, were the attendants. They wore formal length gowns of melon knit with empire bodices, V-necklines, short bell sleeves and flared skirts. They wore off white floppy brimmed lace picture hats trimmed with clusters of fresh poms in fall shades and banded with wide ribbon. Each carried a wicker basket arranged with white, orange and yellow pompoms and baby's breath with satin bows.

Mike Anderson performed the duties of best man for his brother. Jan Anderson was the groomsman, and ushers were Danny McBee and Mike Hull, brothers-in-law of the bride, Tony Anderson, brother of the groom, and Todd Ralph, brother of the bride.

Ty McBee, who carried the rings on a lace trimmed satin pillow, and Brandon McBee, who carried the Bible, are nephews of the bride.

Mrs. Ralph chose for her daughter's wedding a silk crepe floor length gown striped in pastel shades of green, melon and beige with jewelry neckline and long sleeves. She had beige accessories and a corsage of orange carnations. Mrs. Anderson wore a formal length gown of dusty coral with round neckline and long sleeves. She wore a corsage of white and yellow carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Anderson of Good Hope, grandparents of the groom, were present, and Mrs. Anderson wore a corsage of yellow and white carnations.

A fall theme prevailed in the colors at the reception held in the church dining room. Hostesses were Mrs. Lorraine Kelly and Miss Sharon Bowman of Greenfield, Mrs. Linda Hike of Cincinnati, and Miss Verna Jones of Leesburg. Mrs. Terri Anderson, sister-in-law of the groom, presided at the guest book.

Carl's Restaurant was the setting for the rehearsal dinner held the evening preceding the wedding.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are McClain High School graduates. She is employed at Bob's Super Valu and her husband at Greenfield Products.

They are residing at 609 Mirabeau St.

Choral Society rehearsal tonight

Fayette County Choral Society members are invited to remain after tonight's 8 p.m. rehearsal at First Presbyterian Church for refreshments and getting acquainted.

Executive committee members are to meet in the church at 7 p.m. with president Jeff Sheridan.

Membership in the chorus is still open for the Nov. 21st Oratorio Concert. All singers are invited.

Mrs. Timmons honored at party

Mrs. Charlotte Timmons of Washington C.H. was guest of honor at a dinner party at the White Cottage Restaurant on Sunday. The occasion was to celebrate Mrs. Timmons' 90th birthday, which is today. Hostess for the event was her daughter, Mrs. Janet Anderson.

Guests present to join them were Mrs. Frances McQuay, Mrs. Mabel Louis, Mrs. Verna Tottle, Mrs. Margaret Withgott and Mrs. Annabel Ater.

Estates, tax shelters get new look in measure

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The new tax bill that Congress is finishing up this week makes major changes in the federal gift and estate taxes and in general would reduce those levies. On the other hand, the bill also whacks away at some of the current tax shelters used by wealthy individuals to cut their taxes.

Here is how the new provisions would work:

GIFT AND ESTATE TAXES

Present law taxes separately the gifts made during a person's lifetime and what he leaves behind when he dies. The first $60,000 of an estate is exempt from taxes. Another $30,000 is tax-free if given away during the owner's lifetime. In addition, half an estate is exempt from taxes if willed to the spouse.

The value of the $60,000 exemption has been badly eroded by inflation. And small farmers have especially complained. While land values have soared, income from small farms has failed to keep pace. Thus, many family farms and family owned businesses are being sold each year so survivors can afford to pay inheritance taxes.

The pending bill would replace the basic $60,000 and $30,000 estate and gift exemptions with a gradually increasing credit that would be subtracted directly from tax owed.

The bill also exempts property willed to the spouse up to $250,000 or half the estate, whichever is higher. Combining all the benefits, the first $525,000 of an estate willed to a spouse would be tax-free.

Presently, only the wealthiest 7 per cent of estates or about 127,000 estates a year, are taxable. The bill would cut that figure to 3 per cent, or 50,000 a year.

For the estates of persons who die in 1977, the credit against taxes under the pending bill would be $30,000, the equivalent of a $120,677 exemption (compared with the current $90,000 combined exemption for estate and gift taxes). In 1981 and thereafter, the credit would be $47,000, equal to a $175,625 exemption.

Under the new provisions, the lowest tax rate — for the smallest estates — would be 30 per cent of the value. The top rate would be 70 per cent. Taxes owed would be computed by multiplying the value of the estate by the tax rate and subtracting the tax credit.

Another provision in the bill is of special importance to family owned farms. Current law requires that the value of land be figured on the basis of its highest use, which in the case of farm land generally means how much the property would be worth if developed commercially.

Under the bill, if certain conditions were met, farm land would be valued as farm land, which generally would mean lower taxes.

Most of the changes in estate and gift taxes would mean lower taxes. The most controversial part would raise taxes on heirs who sell inherited property.

Existing law generally requires a person to pay a tax when he sells an asset, such as stock or land, for more than he paid for it. The difference in the buying and selling price is a capital gain. In most circumstances, half the gain is tax-free; the other half is taxed at the person's usual income tax rate.

Assuming a person bought a piece of land for $10,000 and sold it 10 years later for $50,000, half the $40,000 would be taxed, according to the capital gains rule.

If the owner, instead of selling the land when it was worth $50,000, willed it to a relative, the donor would avoid any tax.

If the heir later sold the land for $60,000, he would be taxed under present law only on half the $10,000 increase since he acquired it. The increase in value between the original $10,000 purchase price and the $50,000 at the time the land was given away would escape tax.

This would change under the pending bill, which would tax the increase in value from the tie of any original purchase after Dec. 31, 1976, to the final sale.

Other major changes in the estate tax would allow payment of taxes over a 10-year period under certain conditions, but would make it more difficult for wealthy families to avoid taxes by willing property to one generation (a child, for example), and the income from that property to a succeeding generation (a grandchild).

MINIMUM TAX

The minimum tax is imposed on certain individuals and corporations in addition to a regular income tax paid. The purpose is to ensure that a high-income person pays some tax no matter how many deductions he takes.

The minimum tax has not been all that successful, as evidenced by the fact that 224 persons earning $200,000 a year or more paid no income tax at all in 1974.

The minimum tax is really a tax on nine large deductions, known as preferences, chief of which is the tax-free half of capital gains.

Under present law, a taxpayer adds up his preferences, subtracts a $30,000 exemption and whatever regular income tax he paid, and pays a tax of 10 per cent of the remainder.

The bill would raise that tax rate to 15 per cent and allow an exemption of either $10,000 or one-half regular taxes paid, whichever is higher.

The net effect of the changes would be to raise the tax rate on those 40,000 persons already subject to the minimum tax, extend the tax to 230,000 individuals and bring the government about $1.3 billion a year in new revenue.

MAXIMUM TAX

This sets a 50-per-cent ceiling on the amount of tax a wealthy person pays on his earned income, such as salary and fees. The top tax rate of 70 per cent still applies to "unearned income," such as interest and dividends.

Under present law, the amount of earned income to which the tax ceiling applies is reduced by tax preferences (the biggest one is the untaxed half of capital gains) above $30,000.

The bill would help the wealthy by extending the 50-per-cent tax ceiling to pensions. But they would be hit harder by elimination of the $30,000 exemption. Thus, the income protected by the maximum tax would be reduced dollar-for-dollar by total preferences.

By 1981, these changes would cost the wealthy an extra $43 million a year.

TAX SHELTERS

Persons earning more than $50,000 a year often use tax shelters to cut their taxes. Shelters are investments aimed at providing quick deductions that a taxpayer can use to reduce taxes on his regular income, such as doctors' fees or executive salaries.

In a typical shelter, four doctors might form a partnership for the purpose of investing in construction of a commercial building worth $500,000. Each of the four would put up $25,000 cash; the remaining $400,000 would be covered by a "nonrecourse loan" taken out by the partnership.

Although none of the four would be personally liable for repaying the loan, each doctor would be deemed to have a $125,000 interest in the $500,000 project. Thus, each could deduct "losses" of up to that amount.

In a real estate tax shelter these losses generally are fast depreciation of the building and a deduction for interest paid on construction money and for taxes paid during the construction period.

It would be possible for each of the doctors to wipe out a big chunk of taxes on his regular income by using the artificial losses from the investment to reduce his regular income.

The bill would not wipe out tax shelters altogether. But it generally would limit deductible losses on an investment to the amount each person actually risked.

Thus, each of the doctors in the above example could shelter no more than $25,000 of his regular income by deducting losses from the investment.

The bill also would limit the deduction that could be taken for interest paid to finance an investment. That limit equals investment income plus $10,000.

Dog owners get word on noise

ABERDEEN, N.C. (AP) — Town officials here believe in letting sleeping dogs lie — and in waking up the owners of dog who bark too late at night.

Spurred by complaints from some of the 2,000 residents that barking neighborhood dogs were disturbing their sleep, the town board decided recently to enforce a long-standing ordinance against unnecessary noise between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

The board instituted a program called "Awake the Owner," under which citizens whose slumbers are disturbed by canine cacophony telephone the police with the name of the offending dog's owner.

A police dispatcher then awakens the owner with a telephone call — and if necessary, a second and third call until the dog is heard no more.

"The program has been successful," former Police Commissioner Cliff Blue Jr., who is credited with originating the plan, said Friday. "Lots of people have complimented me. One man said he whipped the hell out of his dog one night."

Blue publicized the program in the Sandhill Citizen, a weekly newspaper he edits in this south-central North Carolina town. He said he resigned as police commissioner this week to avoid conflict of interest and now serves as road commissioner.

Jeffery named trustee chairman

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Harry P. Jeffrey, a lawyer, has been elected chairman of the trustees of Wright State University.

He succeeds Robert S. Oelman, chairman of NCR Corp.'s executive committee.

Jeffrey of Dayton was first associated with Wright State in 1965 when he was appointed by the governor to an advisory committee on the school.

The Ohio Swiss Festival is held at Sugar Creek in late September.

Dayton newspapers struck by drivers

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The presses were rolling at Dayton Newspapers Inc. Sunday night with plans for delivering Dayton's two daily newspapers through the mails, a spokesman said.

Teamsters Local 957, whose members drive delivery trucks for the papers, struck the company at midnight Saturday after members rejected a federal mediator's bid for a two-week cooling off period.

Dayton Newspapers spokesman Ed O'Neil said the firm's two papers—the Dayton Journal Herald and the Dayton Daily News—will be published on alternate days and delivered by the U.S. Postal Service to newspaper carriers and vendors.

No new negotiations were held Sunday in the strike, O'Neil said.

The Sunday edition of the Daily News was not delivered. O'Neil said it will be discontinued for the duration of the strike.

But he said the Monday edition of the Journal Herald was being printed for delivery on Monday afternoon. The Journal Herald will be published on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and the Daily News on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, he said.

"With only one of the 15 unions in our plant on strike at this time we are fully within out legal rights to continue to serve our customers," O'Neil said. He added that the newspapers would be operating with supervisory personnel in several departments. He said the strikers represent 100 of DNT's 1,150 employees.

Buyers from seven states attend hog sale held here

A sale of Hampshire and Yorkshire hogs at the Fayette County Fairgrounds Saturday attracted buyers from seven states.

A total of 210 head were sold to buyers from Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Kentucky.

Bidders put forth an average of $412 each for the 87 tested boars offered. The top Hampshire boar brought $1,900 from Charles and Jeff Williams of Hilliard.

The top Yorkshire boar was purchased by Jerry Hoppes for $700.

Sixty registered Hampshire gilts averaged $331 per head; 32 registered Yorkshire gilts averaged $217; and 31 commercial gilts averaged $152.

The top Hampshire gilt sold to a New Knoxville family for $1,200; the two top Yorkshire gilts sold to a Van Wert man for $650 each; the second top Hampshire boar went for $1,400; the second top Yorkshire boar brought $600; and the second top Hampshire gilt sold for $950.

The sale was conducted by Andrews and Baughn farms and Charlie Andrews.

Survey planned on food industry

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Visitors to the Ohio State University's Department of Food Science and Nutrition tent at this year's Farm Science Review may find themselves part of a survey.

The department is conducting a consumer opinion poll to find out who people feel about the food industry. Answers will be sought on questions pertaining to food labeling—particularly nutritional information—food processing standards, convenience foods and use of artificial or imitation flavorings and colors in products.

County man hurt in rural crash

A Fayette County man was injured in a Saturday afternoon accident and later cited for failing to yield to an oncoming vehicle, Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported.

Stopped for a stop sign on the Bogus Road, a car driven by Raymond L. Wilhelm, 72, of 3285 U.S. 22-E., reportedly pulled left onto U.S. 22-E. and into the path of a car proceeding west along that roadway.

The second car was driven by Clarence E. Fitch Jr., 26, of New Holland, and it, as was Wilhelm's vehicle, incurred severe damage as a result of the 3 p.m. Saturday accident.

Fitch and a fellow passenger, Martha A. Fitch, 24, of New Holland, both claimed injury as a result of the accident. A passenger in the Wilhelm car, Enola E. Wilhelm, 70, of 3285 U.S. 22-E., also claimed injury. Wilhelm was charged with failure to yield to an oncoming vehicle.

A car driven by Barry L. Joseph, 19, of 2414 Bogus Road, was westbound on U.S. 22 when it reportedly went off the right side of the roadway, traveled back across the road for 69 feet, and struck a Dayton Power and Light Co. utility pole on the left side, just west of the Camp Grove Road.

Joseph's car was demolished in the 12:55 p.m. Saturday accident.

Washington C.H. police officers reported that a car driven by Jeffrey W. Brown, 23, of 507 Warren Ave., was eastbound on Clinton Avenue when it struck another car ahead, which was also eastbound, just east of Draper Street.

The second car was driven by Guy R. Gardner, 26, of Rt. 1, Dill Road, and damage was not listed by police officers.

Following the 1 a.m. Sunday accident, Brown was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, and failing to maintain an assured clear distance ahead.

Pulling from East Street, a car driven by Danny E. LeBeau, 18, of Mount Sterling, reportedly pulled into the path of a car driven by M. Marion Maynard, 41, of Ashville, at 9:46 p.m. Saturday. Both cars were moderately damaged and LeBeau was charged with failing to yield to an oncoming vehicle.

Thomas L. Brown, 25, of Greenfield, told police officers that as he was eastbound on Columbus Avenue, his car brakes failed, and he struck a car ahead, which was also eastbound on Columbus Avenue.

The second car was driven by Virginia L. Caldwell, 24, of 4753 CCC Highway-W, and both cars incurred slight damage in the 7 p.m. Saturday accident, which occurred in the 600 block of Columbus Avenue.

Criminal activity drops, auto accidents increase

Criminal activity in August was about the same or somewhat lower than in August of 1975, according to the Fayette County Sheriff's Department monthly report.

Unfortunately, there was a significant increase in the number of accidents on Fayette County highways.

Last year 47 accidents were investigated during August. This year the number rose to 57, and the number of injuries from accidents jumped from 19 to 31.

One significant decrease was noted. In 1975, two died in highway mishaps during August. There were no fatal accidents last month.

Criminal reports decreased in several areas including auto thefts, assaults, burglaries, and larcenies.

Office personnel were kept busy serving jury notices. Notice was served to 950 persons last month compared to only 660 during the same period a year ago.

Complaints handled in the office increased from 445 to 509, but the 1976 figure was still below the 518 recorded in August of 1974.

There were seven felony arrests during the month, and auxiliary deputies logged 239 hours.

Sweden changes governments

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A coalition of three moderate parties ended 44 years of Socialist government in Sweden today with a national election victory whose greatest consequence may be to set back leftist parties elsewhere in Western Europe.

With only 50,000 to 60,000 postal ballots still to be counted, the moderates had 50.7 per cent of the 5,359,921 ballots counted and 180 seats in the 349-seat parliament. The Social Democrats and their Communist supporters had 47.6 per cent and 169 seats. The new prime minister will be Thorbjörn Fälldin, 50-year-old head of the Center party.

Although the victorious coalition is likely to improve relations with the United States after the seven prickly years in which Olof Palme was prime minister, all three parties are committed to Sweden's traditional neutral foreign policy and to the welfare state that Palme's Social Democratic party built up.

The effect of the election was likely to be felt most keenly in West Germany, where the Social Democratic party led by Helmut Schmidt is engaged in a hard fight to stay in power in the national election Oct. 3.

The Swedish Social Democrats are to the left of the German Socialist party, and the West German Christian Democrats are much more conservative than the Swedish moderates. But the Swedish results were expected to give momentum to the Christian Democrats.

In France, where Sweden has often been held up as a model, the ouster of the Swedish Socialists is likely to have an adverse effect on the alliance of French Socialists and Communists in municipal elections next year and parliamentary elections in 1978.

In Britain, British officials here say, the Swedish results will slow down any push by the Trades Union Congress for more nationalization of industry. One of the key elections issues here was a plan that would have turned private businesses into virtually nationalized companies managed by the Socialist-dominated TUC.

The historic Socialist defeat came after a quiet, almost polite election campaign, devoid of personal attacks or much color. The moderates' low-key approach reflected the character of Fälldin, a steady, plainfaced sheep farmer who barely smiled in a victory television appearance early today. He talked only in the vaguest terms about how the new coalition of Center, Conservative and Liberal parties would work and what it could do.

"What we are offering mostly is a change of direction," said Lars Tobjasson, secretary-general of the Conservative party, second largest group in the coalition. "We will keep a market economy. We want greater freedom of choice for the individual and a change of atmosphere in the country."

Did your job end when the summer ended?

In the past when your summer job ended, you just headed back to high school. But, this summer is different. You graduated from high school last spring, and there's no place to head back to. In fact, a lot of things are different now; things like jobs and what you want to do.

Some of your friends already may have started college. Some may have landed a full-time job. Others may just have taken off. How about you? What's your next move?

Did you ever consider the Army? Before you answer, consider this — You might be able to qualify for a job that pays you a good salary while you learn a skill. The Army offers the freedom to live away from home and afford it; to be on your own in places like Europe, Alaska and Hawaii.

Incentives cut industrial accident rate

By GINNY PITT
Associated Press Writer
Industrial accident rates have plummeted for a number of firms which award prizes to employees who don't hurt themselves. Some safety experts say the win-something-for-nothing drive is more powerful than the instinct for self-preservation.

The National Safety Council says about 10,000 of its 15,000 industrial members use safety programs that rely on the American worker's sense of competition to cut down on-the-job injuries.

Jack Recht, head of the council's statistic division, says these plans — called incentive programs — are good ones because it is necessary, "to continually motivate people to observe safety regulations."

The council estimates that only about 8 per cent of the more than two million Americans who were killed or suffered disabling injuries at work last year were victims of unavoidable accidents. The rest suffered about equally from unsafe equipment or hazardous working conditions and worker carelessness.

It is the latter — the more than 950,000 deaths or injuries that resulted when someone just didn't pay attention or ignored safety precautions — that incentive programs are aimed at eliminating.

Ashland Oil Co., pioneered an industrial safety plan based on big prize giveaways to employees with the best safety records. The company has had a 50 per cent decline in accidents at its facilities throughout the United States over the past 18 months.

In one peak period, time-lost accidents dropped 80 per cent and minor accidents, requiring on-the-scene first aid but no work time lost, went down 20 per cent.

David C. Williams, Ashland's vice president for environmental affairs, says on-the-job safety "is mostly a question of attitude."

Williams and writer Gaylord Binder, who manages Ashland's programs and planning section, developed the company's campaign "to accept the challenge of taking one of the dullest subjects in the world — industrial safety — and making it interesting."

Binder created three major themes for various periods of the campaign to promote worker-consciousness about job safety.

The first was Think Zero Week, preceded by a period of mysterious posters and handbills advising that something was coming but not telling employees what it was. By the time the company unveiled Think Zero Week as a concentrated effort to eliminate all accidents, employees were primed and eager to participate.

The result: The goal of zero accidents was not achieved. But out of more than 25,000 employees nationwide, only 20 work-lost injuries were reported during the week, a 55 per cent reduction from the same period the year before.

Then Binder came up with the Olympic Thinking contest encouraging employees to submit poems, lyrics and catchy slogans about safety. A comparable accident rate reduction was achieved over a month-long period.

The current, and most ambitious, theme is a nine-month Major League Safety program patterned after the all-American sport-baseball.

Each of the company's 27 divisions was given a "team" title — Slicks, Racers, Binders, Compounders, Stickies, to name a few — and was placed in either the Major League East or the Major League West. Each month, safety records are posted as "team percentages" of wins and losses — the number of accidents reported.

The barrage of posters — which change from time to time and feature various employees dressed in baseball uniforms — and handbills and flyers in employee paychecks supplement the team postings.

But the big draw in the safety campaign under all three themes is prizes. Employees win anything from cases of motor oil to digital clock radios to a brand-new station wagon or a trip anywhere in the world if their divisions post the best safety records. Names of employees from winning divisions are drawn at random to win prizes, so it is advantageous for employees to watch out for others as well as themselves.

Since the new safety campaign began, Ashland has spent some $45,000 on prizes, printing and mailings. It's difficult to gauge claims as a result of the reduced injury rate, "but it does have some financial returns, definitely," Williams says.

Employees are generally enthusiastic about the program.

"It's very well publicized," says one winner of a color TV set in the Think Zero campaign, Al Hamm, an assistant controller at the firm's headquarters in Ashland, Ky. "It makes you very aware of safety on the job."

Another TV winner, Anna Horvath, who works as a lab technician for Ashland in Akron, Ohio, says her coworkers are much more safety-conscious since the campaign began.

"Now, every time someone slips or shuts a drawer on their hand, someone else says, 'Oh, do you think we can still win?'" she says.

The immediate results look good, but there is some dispute about whether incentive programs are actually valuable over the long-run.

At least one psychologist says giving away prizes to keep employees from having accidents is only a short-term solution. Dr. Joan Guilford of Orange, Calif., who has done considerable research on accidents, says incentive programs usually peter out after a while.

The workers think someone's trying to do something for them, so they respond by trying to do the right thing," she says.

"But after a while, when the newness wears off, it generally doesn't work."

Recht, the National Safety Council statistician, agrees that "there is no nice, neat study to show why this method works."

"But," he says, "in the judgment of thousands of safety engineers, those programs are most successful, and that's why so many of them use them. If you could explain why they work, you could take over the safety business right now."

Dr. Guilford and others believe that no amount of worker incentive is as valuable in longrange accident reduction as making sure employers provide safe working environments for their employees.

James Foster of the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration, the government agency which sets and enforces industrial safety standards throughout the country, says there are only 1,200 inspectors available to examine some five million work places for safety conditions.

"We haven't been able to inspect all of them once yet, and we probably won't for another 25 years," he says. "The equipment and facilities factor of industrial safety is the quickest and easiest for us to deal with. The people factor — worker motivation — is a much more difficult and ticklish problem."

Foster says OSHA uses the basic equation People plus Hazards equal Accidents, and incentive programs can be valuable "in altering the people half of the equation." In that sense, he says, OSHA supports incentive programs.

At Ashland, David Williams and Gaylord Binder can't explain why their program works either, but, says Binder: "We think we've proven that people can work safely if they want to."

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, TEXAS — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss . . . and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done." But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss . . . but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair . . . now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation. Adv.

Abortive steel hike studied

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — About one month ago, U.S. Steel announced it was raising prices on flat-rolled steel and some bar products. It was to be the third increase in a year, but some steelmen said it still wasn't enough.

The increase didn't stick. Before the month had ended, the company canceled the move, explaining that market factors so dictated. Chief of these factors was a weakness of demand.

Confirmation of this weakness followed shortly, with both U.S. Steel and Bethlehem, the two top producers, announcing layoffs at various mills. Business had lost some of its energy. There was lots of idle capacity.

The entire episode of the announced increase, the rescission of it and the layoffs, all occurring within five weeks, has to be recorded as an economic oddity seemingly at variance with the verities of free enterprise as taught in Economics I.

While it is true that the increase, announced on Friday the 13th, did indeed succumb to an outrageous fate in the marketplace, the puzzling question is why, in spite of demand so weak that workers were laid off, a price increase was attempted at all.

The steel industry has a history dramatized by unusual pricing events, memorable among them being the confrontation with President Kennedy when prices were raised after he felt he had obtained a no-increase commitment.

More recently, the quarterly report of the Council on Wage and Price Stability gives other examples of unusual or unfortunately timed price boosts, such as the one announced right after the council had decided to probe steel pricing.

This remarkable timing provoked President Ford into seeking rollbacks, and to some extent the council managed to obtain them.

Another incident occurred in August 1975, when one of the major steel producers announced a 9 per cent increase in the price of flat-rolled carbon steel products.

The council stated publicly its disagreement with "the timing of this increase," and it urged other steel companies to exercise restraint.

The council stated publicly its disagreement with "the timing of this increase," and it urged other steel companies to exercise restraint. Subsequently, U.S. Steel lowered the boost on some products, and others, of course, fell into line.

Seldom do steel price rises seem to ring sharp, clear and direct, but in fairness to the producers you must admit that their pricing moves attract unique scrutiny, for a number of reasons.

There is the history, a bit distorted though it might be by historians whose antibusiness bias is often obvious. There is the power. There is the pervasive need for the product. There is the price impact on the economy.

The first history of Ohio was published by Caleb Atwater of Circleville in 1838.

CANE DEMONSTRATION — Visitors look on as a Schoenbrunn interpreter demonstrates how moist cane is woven into a mat.

In northeastern Ohio

Road paved with variety

The road to Tuscarawas County in northeastern Ohio is paved with variety. From the historic reconstruction of Ohio's first town, to a touch of Switzerland in festive Sugar Creek, the northeast offers plenty to see and do at a reasonable cost.

Begin your journey back through time at Schoenbrunn Village, southeast of New Philadelphia on U.S. 250.

David Zeisburger, a Moravian missionary, founded Schoenbrunn in 1772, for the purpose of educating and enlightening the Indians in the area.

The town grew, and by 1775, a traveler, passing through the bustling village, described Schoenbrunn as "a pretty town, consisting of about 60 houses, and built of logs and covered with clapboards."

Two years later, Schoenbrunn stood bleak and desolate. Frequent Indian attacks had caused the settlers to abandon their "pretty town", and later, as a result of the growing hostility between the Indians and the white men, the entire village was destroyed.

Today, after major reconstruction by the Ohio Historical Society, the village stands as it once did in that brief time between 1772 and 1777.

Come now, and wander through the church, the one-room schoolhouse, the large meetinghouse and trading post, or one of the other fourteen log buildings, was different in architecture, that make up present day Schoenbrunn.

Stop and watch as a costumed interpreter demonstrates the art of candlemaking, or mat-weaving, of farming. Smell the delicious odors coming from a big, iron kettle, and stop by for a taste of whatever's cooking. Schoenbrunn Village State Memorial is open 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., March through April, and through November from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children under 12.

Now that you're acquainted with the history of Schoenbrunn, why not make a stop across the road to see Paul Green's outdoor dramatization of Zeisburger's turbulent story?

"Trumpet in the Land" brings to life the history of Schoenbrunn, and Zeisburger's struggle to bring Christianity to the Indians.

Performances are held nightly (except Monday), July through September at 8:45 p.m. in the Schoenbrunn Amphitheater, three miles east, off U.S. 250. The cost of tickets range from $1 to $3.75.

Then, if you're looking for an offbeat way to beat the crowds, visit the miniature wonderland of Warther's Museum.

Located one quarter mile east of I-77 at the Dover-Sugar Creek exit, Warther's Museum is situated directly behind the house of Ernest Warther, 331 Karl Ave. Warther has created for children of all ages, a fantasy-land of miniature, hand-carved model trains, many of which actually operate.

Models, handcarved from ivory, ebony, walnut and pearl trace the history of steam power from earliest times to the newest Union Pacific model.

Spend some time to watch the John Bell, the first passenger train, puff along the tracks, or gaze at the intricate design of Lincoln's Funeral Train, and even a miniature reproduction of the Dover Steel Mill, where Warther first worked.

In addition, an excellent collection of Indian relics, including a handsome display of Indian arrowheads, is also open for viewing.

Picnic and camping facilities are available at the site. The museum is open daily from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $1.65 for adults. Children under 16 are admitted free.

Camping is also available at Tall Timber Lake, three miles east of New Philadelphia on Ohio 39. A mecca for boaters and fishermen, the site also offers a playground, golf-course and minibike trails for those who want to unwind from a busy day of sightseeing.

Finally, for a taste of Switzerland, right here in Ohio, come to the charming little community of Sugar Creek, located on Ohio 39 in Tuscarawas County.

Wood-beamed store fronts and splashes of colorful flowers lend an Alpine air to this biggest Swiss cheese area in Ohio.

Eighteen Swiss cheese factories are located within a ten-mile radius of Sugar Creek, keeping the area supplied with huge, round wheels of the nutty-flavored cheese. Located in the heart of Amish country, bearded men and sunbonneted women in horse-drawn vehicles add to the atmosphere of the city.

Demos OK platform

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Democrats shouted approval Saturday of a 1976 state platform that claims significant accomplishments by the Democratic legislature and assails the Republican administration for being "uncaring" about people and problems.

Unlike many previous state conventions of their party, the Democrats adopted the 11-plank document without debate or amendments.

Ohio House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, said the platform represents a solid document for Democratic candidates to run on in the Nov. 2 election.

He called particular attention to it for Democrats seeking to retain the Senate and House seats this year. "We are proud of the record we have established, and we will take it to the people. All we ask is that they have the facts," the speaker said.

Washing machines, some of the compression type, were advertised and demonstrated in Cincinnati as early as 1820, but never came into general use. Ohio women, long after pioneer days, laundered heavy clothing and bedding by the "rub and bile" method. Women used soft soap made from wood ash lye through many favorite recipes.

Farm Science Review scheduled

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Farming is a big business, and the scope of that business will be covered this week in the annual Farm Science Review.

But there also is plenty to see for the backyard gardener and the quality-conscious consumer.

The review, billed as one of the largest presentations of farming methods and machinery in the country, begins its three-day run Tuesday.

It features more than 1,000 pieces of equipment worth in excess of $15 million in operation on the 750-acre grounds next to Don Scott Field, 10 miles northwest of Columbus.

"We have had 20 inches of rain over the review site since June, and our crop plots and fields reflect the value of the moisture during the growing season," according to review general manager Dale Friday.

Friday, who has managed the review since it began 14 years ago, said "Harvesting of corn, soybeans and alfalfa during the three days of the review will be a real test for men and machines."

Along with demonstrations of plowing, harvesting and other tillage in the fields, the central exhibit area will feature more than 400 displays of machinery and farming supplies. Some 2,500 signs will identify corn hybrids, soybeans, forage crops, fruits, vegetables and ornamental plants.

The scope of the review extends beyond the barnyard and the back 40.

As an official bicentennial event, the review will include a display of 75 antique farming implements dating from 1805 through 1923. A colonial garden will show how flax, open pollinated corn and black soybeans were grown in the early days of America. A style show will depict the history of cotton from the clothing of Martha Washington and other early first ladies to modern garments.

For garden enthusiasts, more than 300 roses have been planted by the department of plant pathology at The Ohio State University. The OSU School of Home Economics' display covers such topics as food safety and nutrition, preparation and storage of fresh foods, fire safety and coping with living alone.

Farming of today and the future is displayed at the agricultural engineering section, featuring tips on home insulation, smoke detectors and the eventual use of solar ponds for heating homes and greenhouses and drying grain.

Livestock displays and demonstrations will be presented on the review site and in the OSU barns. And grain producers who want to keep up with the latest price quotations will be

Even a hog can benefit from collegiate exposure

WILMINGTON, Ohio — Even a hog can benefit from exposure to the collegiate life, it seems.

The grand champion barrow at the recent Ohio State Fair was one that completed the Buckeye Barrow Performance Test conducted at Wilmington College earlier this year. It won over about 800 other hogs exhibited at the fair.

The barrow, which was bred by Andrews and Baughn, of Bloomingburg, Ohio had gained 2.08 pounds per day during the 76-day performance test at the Wilmington College Swine Center.

It sold for $2.05 per pound and also produced the first place carcass at the fair.

The Buckeye Barrow Performance Test is held under typical farm conditions at one of the Wilmington College farms. Producers consign the barrows when they weigh about 50 pounds.

The barrows are self-fed in pens of 20 head. Feed utilized throughout the latest test was "Super Pig Developer," from Landmark.

Dr. Donald Chafin, chairman of the department of agriculture at Wilmington College, said that the college uses the barrow test "as a means of giving Wilmington College students some practical experience in their educational program."

"We appreciate and are very grateful for the fine association we have had with Ohio Extension Service and the excellent support we have enjoyed from farmer-producers who consign to the test."

Wilmington College will play host to able to watch the trends on a ticker tape at the review.

The review is sponsored by the Ohio State University College of Agriculture and Home Economics, the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service, the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center and the Ohio Expositions Commission. Parking is free, tickets are $2 at the gate.

the Buckeye Barrow Performance Test again beginning October 9 and ending in late January.

In addition to the grand champion, four other barrows which competed in the performance test won championships in their respective breed classes in open competition at the fair.

Clover seed production rises

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Agriculture Director John M. Stackhouse has coupled a report that production of red clover seed is running ahead of recent years with a reminder to Ohio clover producers.

Ohio law requires all small grains and seeds to be analyzed for purity and percentage of germination, among other things. They must bear an official tag with the required labeling information if they are offered for sale, Stackhouse added.

He said more information on sale of seed could be obtained from county extension agents or the Ohio Department of Agriculture Seed Section at 14573 National Road S.W., Reynoldsburg, Ohio, 43068.

Reds clinch at least tie

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds are pulling for their closest competitors — the Los Angeles Dodgers — to win.

"We don't want to come to the ballpark Wednesday having won it because San Francisco beat the Dodgers," said Cincinnati's Pete Rose.

The Reds clinched a tie for the National League West Division crown Sunday by defeating San Francisco 5-2. The victory moved Cincinnati to within one victory — or one Los Angeles loss — of winning its fifth West Division title in seven years.

But Rose said the Reds want to wrap up the title with a victory Tuesday night at home against San Diego.

In other NL games Sunday, the Chicago Cubs edged Philadelphia 1-0, the New York Mets nipped Pittsburgh 7-6, Los Angeles crushed Atlanta, 8-1, Houston swept a pair from San Diego by 3-2 scores, and Montreal and St. Louis split a doubleheader, St. Louis winning the first 9-7 and Montreal taking the nightcap 1-0.

Rose slammed three doubles to boost his average to .329, tying him for third best in the league, 13 percentage points behind leader Bill Madlock of Chicago.

While Rose, celebrating his 33rd birthday, slammed three straight doubles, Gary Nolan, 13-9, survived a shaky start, then retired 16 straight batters to give the Reds their victory.

Nolan and Rawley Eastwick teamed up for a four-hitter as Eastwick recorded his 24th save of the season, tops in the majors.

Dodgers 8, Braves 1

Bill Buckner's four hits, including a two-run homer, provided the firepower as Tommy John hurled a six-hitter to lead Los Angeles to its victory over Atlanta. John, 10-10, extended his string of scoreless innings to 13 before the Braves scored in the fifth. Dick Ruthven, 13-16, was the loser.

Mets 7, Pirates 6

Dave Kingman drove home five runs with two homers and a sacrifice fly and Ed Kranepool's pinch single plated the winning run as New York edged Pittsburgh. Of Pittsburgh's six losses in their last 24 games, four have been to the Mets.

Kingman now has 37 home runs, tops in the majors. Omar Moreno and Willie Stargell had two-run homers for Pittsburgh.

Cubs 1, Phils 0

A home run by Jerry Morales and Ray Burris' seven-hit pitching carried the Chicago Cubs over Philadelphia. It was the Phillies' 19th loss in their last 25 games. But with Pittsburgh also losing, the Phils retained their four-game lead in the NL East.

Astros 3-3, Padres 2-2

Jerry DaVanon's single scored Wilbur Howard with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning of the first game, and Cliff Johnson drove home two runs in the nightcap as Houston swept a pair from San Diego by identical scores.

Cardinals 9-0, Expos 5-1

The Cards' Ted Simmons slammed a bases-loaded triple to key a five-run rally in the ninth inning of the opener. Veteran Woodie Fryman checked St. Louis on three hits and Ellis Valentine slammed a run-scoring double as the Expos won the nightcap.

New York closes in on crown

Yanks win 2-1 on Munson throw

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Everyone talks about Catfish Hunter's pitching — but what about Thurman Munson?

The New York catcher sometimes throws to bases harder than Hunter throws to home plate and his fastball Sunday caught a Milwaukee Brewer runner napping at third.

The perfect pitch saved a rain-shortened, 2-1 victory for the Yankees and moved them closer to the American League East title.

"We've picked off around 10 guys this year using that play," said Munson, whose pickoff of Robin Yount in the fourth inning preceded a long fly ball by Sixto Lezcano that probably would have scored the runner.

"The breaking ball freezes the runner on third and bangbang, we get him," said Munson. "I call it where the batter can't hit it. I call that play a lot. Graig (Nettles) is really alert down there. We won a game in Kansas City using that play."

Hunter, 16-14, only pitched five innings because the game was called by rain in the middle of the sixth, but it was enough to record his 200th major league victory.

New York's victory, coupled with Baltimore's 5-4, 3-2 doubleheader loss to Cleveland, lowered to three the Yankees' "magic number" for clinching the American League East title.

While the Yankees moved closer to a championship, the Kansas City Royals did the same in the West. The Royals defeated the Chicago White Sox 6-5 and improved their lead over Oakland to six games. The A's lost ground by splitting a doubleheader with Texas — losing the first game 9-1 and winning the second 13-3.

Elsewhere, Boston stopped Detroit 6-1 and Minnesota whipped California 7-5.

Indians 5-3, Orioles 4-2

A two-run homer by Boog Powell highlighted a three-run sixth inning as Cleveland beat Baltimore in the first game of their doubleheader.

Ray Fosse singled home the winning run in the 13th inning of the nightcap as the Indians completed the sweep.

Royals 6, White Sox 5

Al Cowens singled off the leg of Chicago reliever Terry Forster in the eighth inning to score Hal McRae from third base and lift Kansas City over Chicago. McRae singled and moved to third on consecutive wild pitches before scoring the winning run.

Forster, 2-12, took the loss, and the winner was Steve Mingori, 5-5, the fourth Kansas City pitcher.

Rangers 9-3, A's 1-13

Jim Umbarger pitched a four-hitter and Tom Grieve had four of Texas' 15 hits as the Rangers trounced Oakland in their first game. The A's came back to win the second as Claudell Washington's triple and Gene Tenace's two-run single keyed a seven-run fourth.

Red Sox 6, Tigers 1

Steve Dillard hit his first major league home run with two teammates on base to pace Boston over Detroit. Rick Wise, 13-10, went the distance for Boston, scattering six hits.

Twins 7, Angels 5

Steve Braun capped both rallies with RBI singles as Minnesota erupted for seven runs in the seventh and eighth innings to give Minnesota relief ace Bill Campbell his 16th victory of the year.

Buckeyes beat Penn State

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — The scoreboard said Ohio State 12, Penn State 7. The clock showed 3½ minutes to play. The ball rested on the Ohio State 40-yard line and the chains measured fourth down and inches.

Since the Buckeyes had punted on third down in the second quarter, it would seem that Woody Hayes would not disdain a punt in this situation.

He did. Earlier in the fourth period, with the score only 6-0, the Buckeyes had a fourth-and-one at the Penn State eight. Obviously the spot for a chip-shot field goal and a seemingly safe nine-point lead, right?

Wrong.

Has Woody Hayes, who practically invented three yards and a cloud of dust, become a riverboat gambler in his old age?

"We like to run the ball, and if we give it up we can't," was genial Woody's explanation for sending 241-pound Pete Johnson smashing for a vital yard to keep possession in the closing minutes of the second-ranked Buckeyes' 12-7 triumph over seventh-ranked Penn State Saturday.

Young wins LPGA clash

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Saturday, when she had a share of the second-round lead, Donna Caponi Young said there was a good chance of a sudden-death playoff in the $45,000 Portland Classic golf tournament.

Sunday, she made good on her prediction, losing a fourstroke lead on the final two holes of regulation play before winning with a birdie on the second hole of sudden death.

"I am never going to mention the probability of a playoff again," she said.

The 31-year-old two-time U.S. Open champion from Los Angeles had bogies on the 17th and 18th holes.

Meanwhile, Clifford Ann Creed, a tournament veteran with 11 LPGA titles but none since 1967, sank birdie putts on the last two holes to finish tied for the lead at 217, two-under-par.

"I was furious with myself," Mrs. Young said. "I was so mad at myself for playing two such stupid holes."

She won it with an 18-inch birdie putt on the second playoff hole. Miss Creed missed a 10-foot putt for a birdie on the same hole, leaving the ball on the left lip of the cup.

Elliott still holds point lead

Panther team hits scoring list

While Jeff Elliott and Gary Williams are enjoying a comfortable lead over the pack in the South Central Ohio League scoring race, the Miami Trace Panthers are making an attempt — intentional or not — of putting the most players on the list.

The Panthers have scored 104 points in their first two games, and no fewer than 12 Trace players have broke into the scoring column — 11 have touchdowns.

Balance and depth have been the keys to the Panthers' offense this year as coach Fred Zechman has given a number of running backs a chance at carrying ball.

Thirty-one players have scored points for SCOL teams this season, and 12 are Panthers.

Elliott of the Blue Lions holds a one-point lead over Wilmington's Williams, who scored two touchdowns and kicked three extra points in the Hurricane's 47-0 win over Clinton Massie. Elliott, who had a four touchdown performance against Wellston in the first game, was held scoreless by Chillicothe in a 12-6 loss.

Miami Trace's Bill Hanners and Art Schlichter are tied with Bruce McKee of Wilmington for third place. All three have 14 points on two touchdowns and a conversion.

Seven players are tied for fourth with two touchdowns apiece.

The Panthers' Rex Coe, who was among the league's top scorers last season, scored his two touchdowns last Friday while rushing for 121 yards in just nine carries.

The Blue Lions' Terry Wilson accounted for the only touchdown against Chillicothe on a 54-yard punt return in the first quarter. He also had a touchdown the previous week after hauling in a Mark Heiny pass.

Madison Plains' Grant Bartee scored the Golden Eagles only touchdown Friday on an 85-yard kickoff return against West Jefferson. Bartee had also scored the previous week.

Two Hillsboro players, Tyler Woods and Keith Ford, scored touchdowns Friday to up their season totals to 12 points.

Circleville's Tom McGuire hauled in his second scoring pass from junior quarterback Brad Allison Friday while Tom Walker scored twice from his slotback position for Wilmington.

Rounding out the league's top scorers' list — seven points or more — are Frank Merrill of Circleville and three Miami Trace players Dan Gifford with 10 points and David Creamer and Bill Warnock with eight a piece.

Third straight loss

Ball State blasts Miami hopes, 23-6

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ball State Coach Dave McClain called it a "pivotal game not only for the football team but for the university."

The Mid-American Conference newcomers had just toppled touted Miami 23-6 to put them in a good position for a run at the league championship.

For Miami, ranked nationally at the start of the season and favored to claim the conference title again, the league-opener loss was its third in as many games.

"We worked hard this week but we didn't make it back far enough," said Redskin Coach Dick Crum. "We're going to have to re-evaluate and get things done."

McClain cited enthusiasm as a key factor in the Cardinals' football fortunes. "We've got a lot of kids hungry to win," he said. "We're trying to build pride and tradition."

The victory was Ball State's ninth straight over two seasons, and many observers believe it was especially important in its title hopes because it plays a relatively easy schedule.

The loss was particularly devastating for the Redskins, the MAC champions for three straight years, because it was the first time in school history that a team has lost the first three games of the season.

Ball State clinched the triumph with a 14-yard touchdown pass on a fake field goal by Dave Wilkins in the fourth quarter.

"We gave them a lot of different looks," McClain said. "We're always trying to give our opponents new each week. Some of the things we do keep people off our backs."

In other MAC action, Bowling Green rolled over Eastern Michigan 53-12, Central Michigan edged Toledo 9-7, Ohio University trimmed Kent State 14-12 and Western Michigan downed Northern Illinois 37-6.

In other Ohio college football action Saturday, second-ranked Ohio State squeaked by seventh-ranked Penn State 12-7 with quarterback Ron Gerald and wingback Bob Hyatt scoring the touchdowns.

Takes Kings Island golf crown

Crenshaw wins Ohio tourney

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Andy North gambled. Ben Crenshaw went conservative.

The outcome of their different head-to-head strategy on the closing hole Sunday led Crenshaw to his third golf victory of 1976, a $30,000 payday in the Ohio Kings Island Open.

"I had to go for it. I just hit it too solid," North said of a three-wood shot that sailed over the green on the 590-yard, par five 18th at the Nicklaus Golf Center.

Crenshaw was 10 yards past North facing a big lake that guards the final green. "I was surprised when he laid up. But he knew what he was going as well as he's putting," said North.

Indeed, the 24-year-old Crenshaw did. He wedged to within 14 feet, sank the putt for a birdie, a four-under-par 66 for 271. It was one lower than North, who got up-and-down for his bird from the back fringe.

Crenshaw said he never wavered in his strategy.

"I knew Andy would have a difficult chip. The grain of the grass went against him. I thought I could get my third shot within birdie distance," explained the winner.

Crenshaw's victory tied him with Hubert Green as the only three-time winners on the 1976 tour. He moved past the idle Hale Irwin into second place in the year's money race with $256,000, less than $10,000 behind leading Jack Nicklaus.

Missouri 'lives, dies by the upset'

Illini slams next OSU opponent

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Leave it to Missouri's giantkillers to provide an upset just when it appeared as though college football's Top Twenty might get through the weekend without one. Unfortunately for the sixth-ranked Tigers, those who live by the upset also die by the upset.

Unranked before the season, Missouri not only cracked The Associated Press' Top Ten but vaulted all the way to sixth place by trouncing Southern California in its opener a week ago. Saturday, however, the Tigers were victimized by Illinois 31-6. If the Tigers remain true to form, second-ranked Ohio State is in for trouble next weekend when Missouri goes to Columbus, Ohio.

"We can't think about the Top Ten," said Illinois quarterback Kurt Steger, who threw touchdown passes of seven and 74 yards to Erick Rouse. "I think that's what Missouri did. I heard over the P.A. (public address) several times, 'Ohio State next week,' so they were thinking about them."

"Missouri was looking ahead to Ohio State. We weren't looking ahead to Baylor. We were looking to Missouri ... and we got them."

But Coach Bob Blackman disagreed. "This was no Missouri letdown," he said. "We put out a super effort all week and played our hearts out."

Eighth-ranked Nebraska, ousted from the No. 1 spot after a tie with Louisiana State, bounced back and crushed Indiana 45-13 with Monte Anthony and Richard Berns each scoring twice.

Alabama, No. 14, recovered from a loss to Mississippi and trampled Southern Methodist 56-3 behind a 419-yard ground assault. "Thanks for the lesson," SMU rookie Coach Ron Meyer told old master Bear Bryant.

Texas, down to 19th in the wake of a loss to Boston College, got Earl Campbell back and needed every one of the powerful fullback's career-high 208 yards, including an 83-yard gallop that set up the winning touchdown, to beat stubborn North Texas State 17-14.

Three teams which dropped from the ratings by losing their openers all got well in a hurry — Southern Cal bombed Oregon 53-0, Notre Dame blanked Purdue 23-0 and Florida thrashed Houston 49-14.

Meanwhile, top-rated Michigan outgained Stanford 546-314 and slaughtered the Cardinals 51-0, seventh-ranked Penn State got nothing from two first-and-goal situations and bowed to Ohio State 12-7, and Tony Dorsett scored three times in third-ranked Pitt's 42-14 trouncing of Georgia Tech.

Fourth-ranked Oklahoma prevented Joe Roth from throwing the bomb, sacked the California quarterback three times and whipped the Golden Bears 28-17. Theotis Brown scored two of UCLA's four third-period touchdowns as the fifth-ranked Bruins broke open a tight game and flattened Arizona 37-9.

Bruising George Woodard carried 39 times for 177 yards and two touchdowns as No. 11 Texas A&M pounded Kansas State 34-14; field goals of 57, 53 and 20 yards by Steve Little lifted No. 12 Arkansas past Oklahoma State 16-10 and Laverne Smith scored twice in the first period and No. 13 Kansas went on to trounce Kentucky 37-16.

Carl Trimble scored on a 42-yard run and a 37-yard pass from Pat Lyons to lead No. 16 LSU past Oregon State 28-11; No. 17 North Carolina used a superb defensive effort to blank Northwestern 12-0 and the running of Reg Wouillard and Michael Sweet paced No. 20 Ole Miss over Tulane 34-7.

Michigan's margin of victory over Stanford was surprising since the losers had played Penn State a tough 15-12 game one week earlier. Harlan Huckleby led a 531-yard rushing attack with 157 while the Wolverines' defense handed the Cardinals their first shutout since 1967.

"Gary Moeller is my defensive coordinator and he did a tremendous job in getting the defense ready," said Coach Bob Schmebeckler. "He's the best defensive coordinator in the country. I'd like to take credit for the victory, but I can't. All I did was get mad."

Apparently that was enough to get Michigan's defense mad after it yielded 27 points and a passel of passing yards to Wisconsin last week.

Ohio State's Woody Hayes lost his famous temper only once, firing his cap to the ground and hollering that Penn State was illegally in motion when the officials penalized his defense for illegal procedure.

Pitt's drubbing of Georgia Tech was marred when quarterback Robert Haygood suffered torn knee ligaments and was lost for the season.

While Oklahoma's defense was shutting down Cal's rifle-armed Roth to a great degree — he needed 27 completions to pile up 284 yards — the Sooners' runners romped for 490 yards, including scoring runs of 56 yards by Jimmy Culbreath and 10 by Dean Blevins.

But asked about his team's progress in its bid for a third consecutive national championship, Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer replied: "We're about where I thought we'd be. We're not there yet at all ... not anywhere near where we need to be."

Houston's Bill Yeoman was the spokesman for this week's losers after Florida blasted his Cougars for 415 yards on the ground, 200 in the air and seven touchdowns.

Punt, Pass, Kick winners announced

The Fayette County Punt, Pass and Kick competition was held Sunday at Gardner Park Stadium.

The competition was sponsored by Carroll-Halliday Inc. and the Ford Motor Co. with Fred Domenico coordinating the annual activity.

A total of 78 youths participated. Participants are listed in order of finish.

Eight-year-old division—Robert Shaw, Mike Rayburn and Tommy Perkins.

Nine-year-old—Richard McCown, Scott Hoppes and Richard Spears.

Ten-year-old—Jeff Shaw, Chris Allen and David Williams.

Colts edge Cincinnati, 28-27

Time runs out for Bengals

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
When you're working in the National Football League, that single tick of the scoreboard clock can seem like an eternity.

Try to measure a 10th of a second ... an instant of time divided into its smallest fraction. It is the difference between reaching the quarterback and missing him. Baltimore defensive end John Dutton knows all about it after the Colts' 28-27 victory over Cincinnati.

Detroit Coach Rick Forzano deals in minutes. He was told before Sunday's game against Atlanta that his job was on the line. Win or else. With four minutes to play against Atlanta, the Lions were not winning. Then a rally that included a touchdown pass to linebacker Ed O'Neil on a fake field goal carried Detroit to a 24-10 victory.

Elsewhere Sunday, it was: New England 30, Miami 14; Washington 31, Seattle 7; Philadelphia 20, New York Giants 7; Houston 13, Buffalo 3; San Diego 23, Tampa Bay 0; Pittsburgh 31, Cleveland 14; St. Louis 29, Green Bay 0; Dallas 24, New Orleans 6; Denver 46, New York Jets 3; Chicago 19, San Francisco 12; and Los Angeles 10, Minnesota 10, in an overtime tie.

Oakland plays at Kansas City tonight.

Lions' owner William Clay Ford met with Forzano and Detroit General Manager Russ Thomas last week and made it clear that their jobs were on the line against Atlanta.

"Yes," admitted Ford, "the ultimatum followed from that."

With the score tied 10-10 and 3:57 to play, the Lions set up for a field goal. Instead, holder Joe Reed threw a 32-yard touchdown pass to O'Neil. Then, rookie James Hunter returned an interception 39 yards for another TD and Forzano and Thomas were safe — for one more week, at least.

Dutton and the rest of the Colts' defense had started Sunday's game chasing Cincinnati quarterback Ken Anderson, one of the NFL's premier passers. For most of the first half, Anderson was winning the chase, completing nine of 14 passes for 138 yards and one touchdown.

But then the Bengal passer was leveled by linebacker Stan White and forced to leave the game. John Reaves replaced him and Dutton noticed the change right away.

"Ken going out made a big difference," said Dutton. "It was a big relief for us. We had about one tenth of a second more time to get to Reaves when he was in there."

The game turned on that fraction of time. Reaves completed just three of 10 attempts and by the time Anderson returned, Bert Jones had pulled the Colts back, passing for 301 yards and three TDs to Roger Carr.

Early in the game, Anderson reached 1,500 passes for his NFL career and took over first place in the league's all-time quarterback table. But then he ran into White and out of the game.

Roosevelt Leaks' fourth quarter touchdown from two yards out and Toni Linhart's conversion put Baltimore in front.

Finally, with less than five minutes left, Anderson returned. He threw five more passes, connecting on three for 45 yards but it was too late. The Colts had won ... by one point and a couple of 10ths of some seconds.

Rams 10, Vikings 10
Rich Kay picked off Fran Tarkenton's pass at the goal line with 1:04 left in overtime to save Los Angeles' tie in Minnesota.

The Rams had bounced back with 10 fourth-quarter points to tie the game but then Nate Allen blocked Tom Dempsey's 30-yard overtime field goal try and the Vikes moved downfield. Tarkenton got them to the 11 before Kay's interception halted the drive.

Patriots 30, Dolphins 14
Quarterback Steve Grogan threw three TD passes as New England shocked Miami. Grogan completed 16 of 27 passes for 166 yards.

Bears 19, 49ers 12
Walter Payton rushed for 144 yards and two touchdowns, leading Chicago past San Francisco.

Redskins 31, Seahawks 7
Billy Kilmer threw three TD passes as Washington walloped Seattle.

But Kilmer called the Redskin ground production of 273 yards the key to the victory. Mike Thomas accounted for 143 of those yards.

Steelers 31, Browns 14
Pittsburgh scored all its points in the second half after trailing Cleveland 14-0 at the intermission.

Jack Ham blocked a punt and then two Cleveland fumbles keyed a 17-point Steeler third quarter that triggered the victory.

Sports car leaders retain championships

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Stuart Rulka of Burnaby, B.C. and Gene Hanchett of Fresno, Calif. successfully defended their titles Sunday in the 1976

Oilers 13, Bills 3
Houston beat Buffalo for the ninth straight time with Don Hardeman's 19-yard run providing the game's only TD.

O.J. Simpson, playing his second game in six days after sitting out training camp, gained just 38 yards in 16 carries.

Cowboys 24, Saints 6
Roger Staubach completed 15 of 22 passes for 239 yards and Dallas overcame some early errors to whip New Orleans.

Cardinals 29, Packers 0
Jim Bakken kicked five field goals and St. Louis' defense recovered four fumbles and made three interceptions to beat Green Bay.

Bakken's kicks came from 28, 41, 32, 30 and 26 yards and Cards turned in their first shutout in 79 games.

Chargers 23, Buccaneers 0
Tampa Bay absorbed its second straight shutout with Toni Fritsch kicking field goals of 48, 48 and 22 yards for San Diego.

Fritsch also missed from 24, 45 and 47 yards and was unhappy with his .500 day. "There's no excuse when you miss inside the 30-yard line," he said.

Eagles 20, Giants 7
Beaten in six straight preseason games and its regular season opener, Philadelphia rebounded against New York. Mike Boryla passed for one TD and ran for another against the winless Giants.

Broncos 46, Jets 3

Denver set a club record with 543 yards of total offense against the hapless Jets. The Broncos bunched 23 points in the second period and quarterback Steve Ramsey described the offensive show as "spectacular."

MT reserves top Greenon

The Miami Trace Panther reserve team took a 12-0 halftime lead and went on to post a 24-6 victory over Springfield Greenon, Saturday.

Shane Riley scored the first two Panther touchdowns on a five-yard run and a 40-yard pass interception return.

John St. Clair and Dave Hennessy rounded out the scoring in the second half. St. Clair, a sophomore quarterback, scored on a nine-yard run while Hennessy picked up a Greenon fumble and rambled 30 yards for a touchdown.

Greenon scored on an eight-yard pass play in the fourth quarter.

The Panthers lost the game of statistics despite the win picking up just 95 total yards. Greenon had 197 total yards with 157 of those coming through the air.

The Panthers will put a 2-0 record on the line next Saturday when they host Logan.

Change set in Episcopal prayer book

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Episcopal representatives have eliminated from a proposed new rendering of the church's historic Book of Common Prayer some ancient chants considered offensive to Jews.

It was the first time in four centuries that the old masterpiece of ritual and scripture reading had undergone extensive revision. The deletions came as the church's governing convention neared final action today on the revised version.

The House of Bishops was expected to concur with the overwhelming approval given to the changes Saturday by laity and clergy in the other branch of the church's bicameral legislature, the House of Deputies.

In putting finishing touches on the material, they struck out the old, so-called "reproaches" often used in Good Friday services commemorating Christ's crucifixion in the week before Easter. The reproaches originated in church liturgies of the Middle Ages. Pressing for their deletion, the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Winters of Sewanee, Tenn., said the reproaches are a distortion of a Jewish Seder service celebrating deliverance from Egyptian slavery and "makes a mockery" of that observance.

"It would be like Jews celebrating a black mass in a way that is the opposite of its meaning," he said.

Although a liturgical commission had recommended removal of the material because of its possible anti-Jewish connotations, a move was made to retain it.

AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two don't-miss shows premiering tonight, Dick Van Dyke's comedy hour on NBC and a CBS sitcom, "All's Fair," a Norman Lear laugh-out-loud about a liberal-conservative affair in Washington.

But two other new entries — ABC's "Captain and Tennille" variety show and a soap opera called "Executive Suite" on CBS — should be seen tonight only if the sleeping pill fails to work.

Despite a so-so monologue, Van Dyke's show, a kind of less rowdy "Saturday Night," is a sprightly hour of lunacy that emphasizes sight gags and shuns traditional variety show patterns.

For example, Van Dyke is doing a skit with Flip Wilson's "Geraldine" when a network bulletin interrupts things to show a wild chess-and-boxing match between the star and heavyweight George Foreman.

After that, scheduled programming resumes — with Dinah Shore ending a song and being thanked by Van Dyke. Geraldine never reappears.

Later, dumbness is saluted — it'll be a weekly salute — with "The Bright Family," a collection of dimwits played by Van Dyke and the L.A. Mime Company, aided by guest dumb Chevy Chase.

It's hard to describe their denseness, but the least dumb act has Van Dyke shaving his lathered chin with an electric razor.

Another nifty: "The Fonzie Look-Alike Contest," in which the loser, a staff comic named Andy Kaufman, plays a Jose Jimenez-like character. Among other things, he does an Ed McMahon imitation.

"Van Dyke and Company," to appear Thursday nights after this, has its dull moments. But if its premiere is typical, a rare thing called the belly laugh may be coming back each week.

CBS' "All's Fair" stars Richard Crenna as a very conservative Washington columnist of 49 years who falls in love with a 23-year-old radical chic photographer, uninhibitedly played by Bernadette Peters.

Things start when she comes to his Georgetown office-home, meets his then-lover and literary agent (Salome Jens) and his black aide (J. A. Preston), then cases the joint for a photo layout she is doing for the New York Times.

"It's a cute little pad," says she. "You'd never know a Fascist lived here."

One suspects the middle-aged mossback, who proves a charmer, and the liberated young lady liberal won't get along at all. He even calls her a "sorority house Socialist."

But by the end of a funny flurry of me-conservative, you-liberal lines, a romance flares. And the older girl friend-agent exits, having lost his heart but not her commission to the new-comer.

It's a good show. Not so ABC's "Captain and Tennille," which has good singing and warmth from Toni Tennille and little else.

Maybe the next edition will be better. We've little hope for CBS' "Executive Suite," to be discussed in our next edition.

Rhodes sets new slash in outlays

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes canceled a proposed 12 per cent cut in welfare payments Sunday, but imposed an additional 1.5 per cent across-the-board spending cut for state agencies.

State law gives Rhodes the authority to order reductions in spending without the legislature's approval when he believes the state will be spending more than it is receiving.

"Neither is desirable," Rhodes said in a statement, "but the (General) assembly has forced this administration into cutting. An across-the-board cut is better, because it prevents the poor and helpless from having to bear the full weight of the assembly majority's (Democrats) callous half solution."

Rhodes charged majority Ohio legislators with making more persons eligible for Medicaid without providing extra funds.

Lawmakers voted late last week to pump an additional $160 million into the state's Medicaid program with some of the money coming from federal sources. The bill would have provided $50 million dollars of the additional funds from savings in what Democrats said is a waste-riddled welfare department.

On Saturday, the governor called the $160 Medicaid appropriation a "cruel and tragic hoax to play on the bedfast...deprived senior citizens and others."

"Once again, I will be forced to do the General Assembly's job of balancing the budget," Rhodes said Saturday.

Assistant welfare director Raymond McKenna indicated last week he thought the welfare bill still fell short of needs.

Democrat leaders of the General Assembly, who adjourned early Saturday until after the Nov. 2 general election, could not be reached for comment.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

STONE COLUMNS, ARCHES, multi-level roofs and large windows give this house a dramatic appearance. Inside there is a large foyer and a two-story ceiling that allows a curved staircase to appear to hang in space. The second floor has four bedrooms and two baths. The "L" shaped hall actually is a balcony overlooking the family room below. Plan HA940M, designed by architect Rudolph A. Matern, has 1,253 square feet of floor space on the first floor and 1,111 on the second floor. For further information write Matern—enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope—at 89 E. Jericho Tpke., Mineola, N.Y., 11501.

Q. — Is there any way to keep a skin-like covering from forming on the top of a partly used can of oil paint? I have tried several different methods of preventing this, but nothing seems to work.

A. — One of the time-tested ways of keeping old oil paint from developing this covering is to pour a little turpentine into the paint just before you close the cover. When you are ready to paint again, stir in the turpentine. It must be emphasized, however, that the most important factor in preventing the skin-like formation is to re-seal the cover securely. Place the cover in position, drape a cloth over it and hammer the cover into place around the outside. The cloth is to keep you from getting splattered.

Q. — I have been told to use a carbide tip in an electric drill to make holes in a wall made of concrete blocks. I forgot to ask the person who gave me this information whether the holes should be drilled in the blocks themselves or in the mortar joints. Can you advise me?

A. — For most purposes, the holes should be drilled directly into the concrete blocks. If the holes are drilled into the joints, the holding power will be greatly reduced.

Q. — There is a fairly large hole in one of the plaster walls in our house. I intend to use patching plaster to fix it, but know that some kind of screening should be used to form a base for the patch. How do I attach the screen to the wall so that the new plaster won't push it through?

A. — From your description, it seems as though no lath is there. Check to be sure. If it is, the screening is easily attached to the lath with a few brads or staples. If not, hold the mesh in place with a piece of string. Apply the patching plaster while hanging on to the string or attaching it to something. When the patch has hardened, cut the string.

Q. — How do I get rust off garden tools?

A. — Use a wire brush to get off as much as possible. The metal part of the tool should then be treated with any of the rust-removing chemicals now on the market.

For 1976 fund drive

Community Chest goal established

A goal of $23,250 has been established for the 1976 fund drive by the Washington C.H. Community Chest.

The board of directors met with representatives of local service organizations to discuss the allocation of this year's funds. Each organization made its request for funds and discussed the reasons for its financial needs.

Area Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts, Community Education, Red Cross and the Senior Citizens organization were represented. Each of these groups have received funds in the past.

Also requesting financial assistance this year was a representative from Help Anonymous, which had not previously been funded.

In addition, the Community Chest program supports the Eyman Park Fund, the Salvation Army and the Community Activity Fund which purchases candy for the Christmas parade.

The board set the goal of $23,250 to meet the allocation requests of the participating agencies as determined by the representatives and board members. If the 1976 campaign falls short of this goal, each group will receive only a percentage of its allocation.

The board will meet Thursday to make final plans for the campaign which is scheduled to begin Oct. 1.

Dole raps Carter, Mondale

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Robert Dole, in his first foray into Ohio since he was picked as the Republican vice presidential candidate, had a piece of advice for Jimmy Carter: "He ought to stop having interviews."

Dole also told about 2,000 persons at a Republican Party picnic near here that Carter's running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, was too liberal to show his face in the South where moderate and conservative views prevail. The Democrats' liberal policies, Dole contended, would erode Carter's support in Ohio and other key states.

The Kansas Senator flung the barb at Carter in reference to a published interview in which Carter said if elected he would try to shift the tax burden from low and middle income persons to high income persons.

Does that mean Carter would impose higher taxes on everyone making above the median income of about $14,000 a year? Dole asked rhetorically. If it does, Dole continued, it would mean half the families in the country would be paying higher taxes under Carter's comprehensive tax reform proposal.

Carter spokesmen have denied that Carter's tax reform proposal would place such a burden on persons making about $14,000 a year. The spokesmen said the Republican charges were "typical political distortion and misrepresentations."

IN THE SWING — This youngster like dozens of other people got into the swing of things at the Washington C.H. Leukemia Carnival Saturday at Eyman Park. The fund-raising carnival attracted a good crowd, but a total of the proceeds is not available. Games, music, a puppet show and a visit by former Ohio Lt. Gov. John W. Brown, state Leukemia Society chairman, highlighted the afternoon's activities.

Kiwanis band changes name, elects directors

The Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club bicentennial band is now a permanent community band.

The name of the band was changed at a recent reorganizational meeting.

A board of directors, to determine future band policies, was elected by secret ballot.

Gerald Begin, who organized the band, was elected chairman. Others elected were Claude Coulter, Mrs. Linda Evans, Robert Moore, Charles (Bucky) Smith and Miss Mary Kay West. The board will meet once weekly throughout the year.

Coulter will serve as band publicity chairman; Mrs. Evans will head the membership committee, Moore will head the conductor selection process, Smith will be in charge of band

Slate seminar on probation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 12th annual Probation Development Seminar is scheduled for Sept. 21-23 at Mohican State Park in Perrysville, state Youth Commission Director William K. Willis announced.

Heavy schedule set as solons eye adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress faces long sessions and loaded calendars this week as it races to make its scheduled Oct. 2 adjournment date.

Congressional leaders seem determined to meet that target, with House Speaker Carl Albert claiming that he will keep his chamber in session all night if necessary. In the Senate, where the workload appears lighter, Assistant Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., has told colleagues to brace for "long daily sessions."

But, added Byrd, "as far as the Senate is concerned, we are definitely on course."

Democratic leaders say they want to prove wrong President Ford's prediction last week that Congress would miss its deadline by at least a week and his claim that he needs to stay in town to keep Congress from "going off the deep end."

Both the House and Senate were to dispose of a number of uncontroversial bills today to clear the way for some meatier issues later in the week.

On Tuesday, the Senate votes on a House-passed bill raising the federal unemployment compensation tax on employers. Now an employer pays $21 into a federal fund for each worker earning at least $4,200. The bill would raise that figure to $42 until the current $7.7-billion deficit in the fund, caused by heavy unemployment, is wiped out.

A major fight is expected over whether to extend unemployment insurance to most farm workers, as the House bill does.

The Senate Finance Committee rejected such an approach. Some members claimed giving unemployment benefits to migrant farm workers might discourage them from seeking other jobs once harvests were in.

On Wednesday, the House considers legislation to revise copyright laws. The changes would give greater protection to authors and recording artists.

The same day, the Senate debates legislation which has been dubbed the "sunset bill." It would require all federal programs to be reviewed every five years. Those that Congress failed to renew would go out of existence.
